EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

A CYCLONE might do something with the Legislature.

COLORADO is jubilant over the discovery of oil in that state.

IT is stated that 400 persons have been killed by wind this year.

THE Legislature has been in session 80 days at a cost to the State of $240,000.

UTAH now counts on 30,000 unquestioned Mormon votes, while the non-Mormon voters only number about 5,000.

THE average Democratic legislator is satisfied to X-tend the extra session. It is ten dollars a day whichever way he looks at it.

A METHODIST church in Monticello, New York, has refused a donation of $50 to buy a church bell withal because it was raised by social dancing. Truly this world is getting better.

THE foreign capitalists, who are seeing the Northwest with Rufus Hatch, had their eyes opened by their visits to the Dalrymple farm, where they saw 130 reapers and self-binders begin work on a field of 28,000 acres of wheat.

ANOTHER patriotic citizen has bequeathed the government nearly a million dollars toward extinguishing the national debt. It is to be hoped he did no injustice to any indigent relative for the sake of helping the government.

GOVERNOR BLACKBURN, of Kentucky, is spending the last hours of his official life in grinding out pardons for murderers and other notorious criminals. It is to be hoped his successor will not imitate this pestilent example.

SOME other explanation of the epidemic of suicides must be sought than business difficulties or disappointment in love. Many of the suicides of the past few days were persons in good circumstances and happily married. It must be the weather that develops this midsummer madness.

GRAVE doubt is thrown on the authenticity of the alleged manuscripts of Deuteronomy which Mr. Shapira claims to have secured, on account of the resemblance of his name to that of the lady whose sudden decease is chronicled in a sacred manuscript of somewhat more recent date.

THE exposition at Louisville is now fairly under headway, and promises to be the grandest affair of the kind in the country. The art gallery is pronounced the height of beauty, and many rare and costly works are exhibited. Large crowds are daily in attendance, and every one is delighted and surprised by the display.

THE Canadian authorities have done what humanity and common sense alike dictated in announcing that any one attempting to swim through the Niagara rapids will be arrested as a lunatic. It is certainly no more than reasonable to accept such an attempt as an evidence of insanity, and in New York State, where suicidal attempts have already been made criminal, similar action should be taken.

English Manufactures and Our New Tariff.

The following, from the Manchester Guardian, will be read with interest. We have taken the liberty to italicize some significant passages.

"So far as pig and manufactured iron are concerned, the new American tariff is in operation, but what effect it will have upon the trade of this district as yet remains to be seen. Somewhat sanguine hopes have been entertained that a better trade will be the result, but it must be born in mind that in revising the tariff it has not been the aim of the American Government to develop the trade of this country, but rather to help forward their own industry, and that it has been practically on this basis they have worked in arranging the new charges. The general opinion, however, entertained by those who have recently visited the States and by leading makers at home is that the new tariff will tend to increase, and not to lessen, business, but that a great deal will depend upon the interpretation that may be put upon some of the clauses, and that until these have been tested it is not likely that business will be stimulated to any great extent especially by reason of new tariff charges There is a belief that some loop-holes may be found capable of being 'worked' more to the benefit of the importer than at present appears on the face of the revised scale of duties, and, as an illustration of what was done under the old arrangement, it may be mentioned that it was a frequent practice to have holes punched in the ends of hoops, so that they might pass customs under the more favorable scale as barrel hoops. Although this involved an extra charge of 15s. per ton by the English maker for punching holes which were not wanted, but were afterward cut off, it was found to pay the importer. Another consideration which will largely affect United States imports of iron from this district is the probable course of action which American makers may take; already a number of the American works, unable to meet the cost, are being 'shut down,' and it is a question how far this restriction of the output may go. Up to the present, except in cotton-tie hoops, of which large shipments have been made, the new American tariff has had no appreciable effect upon the American demand for iron from this district. As to the probable effects of the new tariff, there is a good deal of variance in the opinions expressed by the Lancashire makers of finished iron, but the general impression may be summed up as follows: In wire rods it is thought the new arrangement will enable an increased business to be done, and that all iron [steel?] intended for fencing purposes will get in under favorable terms."

A VERY touching account has been going the rounds of the papers, which, even if invented, does honor to the inventor's heart, of the way in which Blaine received a proposal, or something in the nature of a proposal, not to insert the portrait of his old enemy, Roscoe Conkling, in his forthcoming historical work. This work is to be, if we are not misinformed, a subscription book, to be disposed of, in part at least, by traveling agents; but the subscription book must, as every one knows, have pictures in it to make it go, and Mr. Blaine's is to have portraits of various statesmen who have been his political contemporaries, friends or foes, as the case may be. Somebody, some low, dastardly person, said to him that he supposed Mr. Conkling's portrait would of course not appear. The author of the Pan-American Confederation scheme, we are told, on receiving this suggestion, arose with kindling eye and advanced on the author of it, and told him that the portrait would appear, and that when it did appear it would be the portrait of a man who had been "the brains of New York" for a matter of twenty years or thereabouts. As we have said before, the story may have been invented or embellished, but, if invented, the composer of it must have been a good man, if not a book agent. If a book agent, he is a pretty cute fellow, for that one story, supported by showing the Conkling portrait, will sell the book.

The Son of Judge Agnew.

Senator Agnew, son of Judge Daniel Agnew, made an admirable speech in the Senate last Thursday, of which the following is an abstract:

Replying to a speech made a few days ago in which he (Gordon) declared "That an apportionment would have to be made before an adjournment could take place," Senator Agnew said as this evidently meant Executive coercion it might as well be understood now as later that this arbitrary exercise of Executive power would be resisted to the last. He quoted at length from legal authorities to show that the Executive call for a special session to apportion the State into legislative districts did not properly fall within the meaning of the terms "extraordinary occasion," "emergency," or "exigency" used in the constitution and applied to the convening of extra sessions of the Legislature, to meet some apprehended trouble or danger to the State.

He said the power vested in the Executive to convene the Legislature, in "extraordinary session" was not intended to permit a session to be called for the purpose of distributing political power. The Governor had shown himself not unbiased in partisan feeling, and under the advice of his ambitious coterie of political advisers he had foolishly carried his political party feeling to an extent that was criminal. He ridiculed the idea so often advanced by the Democrats that their party alone was the conservator of the purity of constitutional obligations.

The time had come for one of two things to be done—either an acceptance by the Democrats of the Senate bills, which were founded on fairness and equity, or adjourn and go home and cease the wholesale robbery of the State treasury. What emergency had existed last June when the Governor called the extra session? There existed no "extraordinary occasion," and no ripple disturbed the placidity of the public mind. It would have been wise to have postponed the call until after the excitement of the coming campaign had passed. He believed that the Republican bills were just, and that the Democratic measures were founded on sand.

The Democratic position was: "No apportionment, no pay." Instead of the Legislature having violated the Constitution by a failure to apportion the State, the Governor himself, by his misinterpretation of its language, violated the spirit and meaning of the Constitution. The burden of a failure to pass apportionment bills rested upon Democrats. "Let them quit higgling and come to some conclusion; if they will not apportion, let us then adjourn and go home."

THE expulsion of a British Jew from St. Petersburg, where he had gone to represent a London business firm, furnishes another proof of the barbarity of the law which makes it criminal for a foreign Jew to make a short business stay in the Russian capital. The value of the Hebrew element in Slavonic Europe seems so manifest that the least provident government might be expected to recognize its claims. If Russia could expel its Jewish population, or even if the covetousness and fury now rampant were tolerated until they ended by scaring from Russian soil the chiefs of the Jewish society, Russian commerce might be paralyzed for a generation.

CHAIRMAN COOPER, of the Republican State Committee, has opened his headquarters at the St. Cloud Hotel in Philadelphia.

The Destroying Tornado.

In commenting on the recent tornado in Minnesota, the Phil'a Press says: The little city of Rochester, Minnesota which is described as the most beautiful in the West, is the the latest victim of the terrible tornado. Only a month ago a part of the town was caught in the path of one of those destroyers, but this second storm swept through another and more thickly settled portion of the city. Strong buildings were demolished, the city's fine shade trees were prostrated, and in some quarters every house was levelled to the ground. At least twenty-six people are recorded among the killed and a much larger number badly injured.

Several other smaller towns and the country districts surrounding felt the power of this storm, which seems to have expended its strength over a considerable area. The description of the tornado differs little from that of a score of others, except that it appears to have been more destructive of life and property than most. The frequent recurrence of these storms is the most unwelcome fact that has manifested itself in the settlement of the country. The region most exposed to these visitations embraces the richest lands in the United States. It is increasing in inhabitants more rapidly than any other section, and will soon contain a very dense population.

In the places which have experienced these tornadoes, unhappily every summer multiplying in number, the people live in constant fear of a second one. The terror inspired by one of these storms never wholly subsides. As the country becomes more thickly settled, the destructiveness of the wind storms proportionately increases. If the experience of the last half dozen years represents the normal condition of things, and town leveling and house upsetting are to become, through repetition, familiar incidents in the tornado region, life in a large portion of the West will be as full of hazard as it is in an earthquake region immediately adjacent to a smoking volcano. We heard little of tornadoes fifteen or twenty years ago. We wish we had some ground for believing that we will hear no more of them fifteen or twenty years hence.

RUSSIA, like the United States, is just awakening to the danger of permitting the wholesale destruction of her forests. The reckless cutting down of trees threatens to convert some of the best wooded provinces into a barren waste, and the new Minister of Domains is taking steps to return to the policy of Peter the Great, who held the forests under Imperial administration.

THE Kentucky legislature will be composed of thirty-three Democrats and five Republicans in the senate, eighty-six Democrats, eleven Republicans and two Independents, whatever they are in Kentucky, in the house, which gives the Bourbons a pretty safe working majority.

EVANGELIST D. L. MOODY has thought worth while to publish a card denying the story that he and Mr. Sankey are no longer able to work in harmony together, and declaring that if their lives are spared they will continue together in the labor they both love and enjoy.

SAID a gentleman who is not a politician: "Unless the legislature adjourns I would not be surprised to see the people rise up in indignation and disperse it." But the people of Pennsylvania are a long suffering and very patient people.

EX-GOVERNOR CURTIN is still at Saratoga telling stories and taking the world easy.—Williamsport Gazette and Bulletin of the 23d

Beg pardon, but Governor Curtin has been at home for several days, although he continues to take the world easy.

THERE are few people who will not be glad to learn that the oystermen predict an unusually good supply of the succulent bivalve this season as regards both quality and and quantity. This intelligence is all the more welcome because for the last two or three years the great American oyster has not been keeping up its reputation. Last year's crop was particularly poor. A fine oyster was the exception, and the public was compelled to content itself with small, watery, flavorless specimens, which merely served as the tantalizing reminders of days gone by. It will seem like old times come back if the oyster for the forthcoming season justifies the mouth-watering promises which have been put forward in its behalf, and John Anderson's restaurant will be more popular than ever.

THE most pitiable spectacle of himself that Gordon has made this session, was last week after Senator Stewart had given him and his tutor Pattison such a severe but deserved castigation. Driven frantic by Stewart's unassailable logic and well-authenticated facts, he resorted to the indiscretion of attacking him personally for uniting with others to test the soundness of Attorney General Palmer's opinion that legislators could not be paid for service beyond the one hundred days' session. The paltry character of the attack is proved by the fact that Gordon himself was associated with Stewart in that test, and that he pretended that he could not see the difference between drawing pay provided by law and entending ado-nothing session just to get the pay.

THE pilgrimage to Williams' Grove to see the Grangers in their annual picnic is wonderful, considering the torrid state of the weather. What a time from ten to fifteen thousand people have had there in the heat and dust and smoke of the various engines of the exhibition of the past few days! There is nothing like excitement, however, and whether the weather is hot or cold people will run after it.

THE first trial of a passenger car over the Brooklyn bridge was made last week and was highly successful. The trip was made in six minutes. It is intended to run the cars at intervals of one minute, if necessary, to accomodate the crowd, and it is claimed this can be done with perfect safety.

GOVERNOR CLEVELAND, of New York, is urged to call an extra session of the Legislature, but he looks over into Pennsylvania and quietly informs his friends that he isn't as big fool as they take him to be.

KING HUMBERT, of Italy, seems to be about the squarest man at present engaged in the monarchy business in Europe. We confidently expect to see him nominated for a second term.

KNOWING ones say that Senator McDonald, of Indiana, is Tilden's favorite for the Democratic presidential nomination, if the old gentleman fails to make it.

THE crop of defaulting bank cashiers is well up to the average this summer. Speculation is the bait that they will all bite at.

MR. TILDEN is the best grammarian in the Democratic party. It is thought he can decline a nomination.

PERHAPS the Legislature will feel like taking a bath? The whirlpool is still there.

SULLIVAN might "knock out" the legislature.

There are few things so irritating in this life as to wait half an hour for your adversary at checkers, and then have him look up, as if just aroused from a nap, and stupidly inquire, "Whose move is it?"

Mrs. Lillie Devereaux Blake asks, "Is it a crime to be a woman?" It certainly is when there is a great necessity for dressing in a hurry.

GENERAL NOTES.

There are 1028 daily newspapers in the United States.

A gold idol weighing 32½ pounds was recently excavated in Calistlahuaca State, Mexico, by some Indians. The idol was composed of a group of figures, but it was broken up by the Indians and divided among them.

The prisoners in the Paducah jail have a pet rat that is as tame as a cat. It seems to have especially attached itself to a colored woman who has been locked up for nearly a year awaiting trial for murder. It sleeps in the blankets with her every night, and if another rat comes into her room, it pounces upon it and makes it hunt its hole.

The brontosaurus is one of the animals now extinct which once inhabited America. It is probable that we have no occasion to be sorry that he is extinct. He was about fifty feet long, and must have looked like a snake mounted on four legs set under the middle third of the body. He had a small head and a large tail, and weighed about twenty tons.

P. Stanislaus Simonetti, a Roman Catholic missionary to Bolivia, has returned to Rome and delivered to the Pope various presents offered as tribute to the head of their church by 4 Indian tribes, natives of the South American Republic who have been converted to Catholicism. Among the gifts were bows and arrows battle shields, stuffed snakes, and other South American products.

Queen Victoria objects to lodging and boarding her sons when they visit her at Buckingham Palace on account of the "confusion and expense," especially the latter. She intends to prevent their doing so in the future. A man living in Raleigh has an immense family, and is likely to run out of names if he follows up the plan adopted at the outset, of giving to each one the names of two States. One of his sons is Iowa Wisconsin Royster, another is Vermont Connecticut, another is Oregon Minnesota, and still another is Arkansas Delaware. Virginia California is the name of one daughter, and Georgia Alabama of another.

Dancing is very popular in Italy, but it is conducted differently from what it is in this country. The first thing the men and women do is to take their shoes and stockings off, if they happen to have any on. A man does not go up to a girl and ask if she will dance, but he fixes his eye on her from a distance and nods. She nods in return, and then both kick off their shoe and advance toward each other and begin to dance.

A bully in one of the precincts of Owsley county, Ky., took the polls on election day with a double-barrel shotgun, and announced that he could whip his weight in wildcats, or clean out any 10 men in the county. The words had scarcely left his mouth when the crack of a gun was heard from the bushes, and the bully lay dead upon the ground. The citizens standing around pronounced it a righteous act, and no investigation of the affair was made.

Poetry.

NO FLIRT ABOUT HER.

They call me a flirt!
It's meaner than dirt!
I never could stoop to such folly.
Let other girls say
Of the "fun" what they may,
What's naughty can never be "jolly."

There's Mary Ann Brown,
She's the talk of the town;
The way she behaves is just horrid.
Should I laugh and tee-hee
On the streets as does she;
Ma's temper, I guess, would grow torrid.

And then there's Sue Joyce,
Who raises her voice,
To draw men's attention, the ninny!
It makes me so mad!
I'd almost be glad
If Sue could be banished to Guinea.

And only just think
Of a girl who will wink
At a fellow who isn't her brother!
I've seen Kitty Grimes
Do that thing twenty times—
It's lucky that ma ain't her mother!

And then I have found
Some girls who look round
To see if a fellow is looking;
Then giggle away
Because the fool may
His own spinal column be crooking.

I never could see
What sense there can be
Or what satisfaction in flirting;
I can't understand
Why girls call it "grand!"
Or why they should think it diverting.

I vow! did you see
That fellow?—tee-hee—
Why, what in the world are you thinking?
You say 'twas my ways
That attracted his gaze?
You dare accuse me of winking?

CREDULITY.

"Suppose," said the fireman, rubbing the grime
From off his dark complexion,
"Suppose you were trying to make up time,
And not a tank on the section!
And suppose that the water was down to 'three,'
And the steam was standing pat,
With the guage somewhere up in high G—
What's done in a case like that?"

"Done!" smiled the lofty engineer,
"I'd just haul open the throttle!
I've run a train on a bottle of beer,
And then thrown in the bottle!
There's engineers on passenger trains
That's made up time on a flask;
It's only a matter of pluck and brains—
But tell me, why do you ask?"

"Because," said the fireman, rubbing his nose,
And giving the shovel a yank,
"I think by the way she snorts and blows
There's not a drop in the tank!
And now I would really like to see
A beer bottle start her pump;
Here's one that the section boss gave me—
Now work it, or else you jump!"

One bound and the lofty engineer
Went out of that engine van,
And when he struck, it didn't appear
Which was the chief end of man.
"I hope," the grimy fireman said,
As he opened the throttle wide,
"I hope he isn't really dead—
But I'm engineer if he died!"

Our Story Teller.

The Wrong House.

It was in Boston. The first snow of the season had fallen the night before, and the wind was dashing it off the tops of the high buildings, filling the air with tiny particles that glittered like diamonds in the brilliant sunshine. It wasn't quite so pleasant to have it come with a rush right into one's face, but every one was merry and brisk this morning, and why shouldn't the wind be so, too? Two bright faced girls were rapidly threading their way through the crowds that thronged around the great dry goods stores. For an hour they had been flitting from place to place, attending to matters important or otherwise, hovering over the pretty things piled high upon the counters, but laughing and shaking their heads over their empty purses.

"I shall have to appoint myself your guardian, Alice, and put a veto on your buying what you don't need." And the speaker linked her arm with that of her companion and drew her towards the door.

"I ought to be grateful, for I am in debt now, and I really ought not to spend a cent. Did you ever see such a good natured crowd? Now you have that call to make, and while you go there I will run in and see Mollie. Don't stay long will you, Grace?"

"No, I won't. What a wind! I should think it came straight from Labrador. This was rightly named Winter street! Here, give me your hand. Let us get into the sunshine, somehow, as quickly as we can."

Hand in hand, laughing, breathless, with heads bent to meet the fierce winds that came tearing around the corner, the cousins struggled forward until they gained the corner, where Alice halted for breath; but Grace ran on, across Tremont street, and stood in the flooding sunlight, waiting for her companion.

"Which way shall we go?" asked Alice, when they were together again. "Up Park street, or across the common?"

"Across the common, by all means," said Grace. "I go out of my way when in Boston, to walk on the common. It is such a relief to me to escape from the cold shadow of the high buildings."

So on they went with faces so bright from the cold air and their merry hearts that all who met them smiled and went their ways more blithely. Suddenly their path was blocked by the snow, on which men were still at work. An unbroken white expanse lay between them and their goal.

"Three alternatives," she exclaimed gayly; "to wade through the snow, which looks rather deep; to wait till the men finish the path for us, or take this path over to Park street."

"In view of the lateness of the hour, perhaps we had better make a concession and accept the last. See there is Mollie's house. You see the house with the roof higher than the others?"

"Yes," said Grace, not very decidedly.

"Well, it is the third one from that. If you finish your call first you can stop for me or vice versa, I will go to meet you. Now don't stay long."

And so they parted. Alice keeping on down Beacon street in the sunshine, Grace turning north over the hill. Neither had far to go from the corner where they separated, and Grace was soon waiting for admittance at her friend's door. The servant who took the card presently returned with the intelligence that her mistress was so ill that she was quite unable to receive any one. So it happened that in a few moments Grace was again upon the street.

"This is nice," she said to herself, as she retraced her steps. "Alice will not hurry herself, and, meantime, what is to become of me? I do not wish to shorten her call. I will walk down the street very slowly and try to kill time."

What an exquisite picture it is! And truly it was beautiful. The leafless trees on the common lifted the delicate tracery of their branches against the cloudless sky. The newly fallen snow lay, still spotless, on the trees and house tops. Along the few paths that had been opened on the common people passed and repassed. The roar and rush of the great city came softly to the ear across the white plain. Near at hand the state house raised its shining dome high in the air, and the merry tinkle of sleigh bells and the merry shouts of children added life and interest to the scene.

"I am getting somewhat tired of this promenade, although I doubt if there could be found a pleasanter place for it in all the city. Which house did Alice say? I'm sure I don't know. If I walk slowly past this club house a few more times I will create a sensation. That will not do at all. Let me try——street." But as she turned the corner the north wind met her, and her feet slipped dangerously on the icy pavement.

"Can't stand this, in more senses than one. Why doesn't that girl appear? If it was not for the snow, now, I might walk in the common in the most unnoticeable way possible. I will walk over and study those roofs. What did Alice say? What a stupid not to ask her the number. But then I shouldn't have heard it if she had told me. Serves me right for giving such careless attention to what people are saying. I declare I don't even know her friend's name. Mollie, Mollie—what? I ought to know. I have heard her name times enough when I have been here before. She was one of Alice's classmates, but she did not mention her last name this morning. This must be the house. Shall I try it?"

Grace, who had been carefully surveying the house that she was approaching, suddenly looked very determined, mounted the steps and rang the bell. The door was opened almost instantly by a dignified old servant in livery.

"I beg pardon if I am making a mistake," she began, in her most winning voice. "Indeed, I am quite at a loss to explain myself. Has a young lady called here within a half hour to see a friend, a Miss Mollie—; my cousin did not mention her surname." And she paused with an embarrassed half smile. But the old servant had already shaken his head.

"No, miss; no one has called. I know, because I have been right here all the time."

"Then I have made a mistake. I am sorry to have troubled you. But, could you, possibly?"—she hesitated.

"I think there is a young lady next door," indicating the house with his hand.

"We have no young ladies in this family."

"Thank you," aloud. To herself: "That accounts for a slight trace of crustiness in your bearing, my good sir. However, you treated me very well—for a tramp."

Should she dare again? Her blood was up. The merry mood of the morning had not passed. It would be no worse than this horrid promenading, and she might find her.

This time the door was opened by a pleasant-faced young mulatto, who seemed instantly to appreciate the situation, for a suppressed twinkle in his eye answered to the smile that, do what she would, Grace knew was twitching at the corners of her mouth.

"I beg pardon," she said, with an air of frankness that would have disarmed the most suspicious mind: "My cousin, Miss Raymond, left me to call on a friend, while I made another call in the near neighborhood. My cousin, pointed out the house to me, but really I do not know the house, the number or her friend's name. She called her only Mollie. Is there a Miss Mollie—? Has a Miss Raymond called? You see, I—. It is really very absurd," and the young lady ended with a little appealing gesture of the hands that would have done credit to a French woman.

The young fellow smiled, yet very respectfully. "There is a Miss Mollie," he said. Grace looked relieved. But she was not yet sure.

"A lady may have called," he continued, "although I did not see her. Miss Mollie is in New York."

"Oh, then," began Grace, preparing to retreat. But he went on.

"If you will step into the parlor, if you please, Miss, I will go and inquire."

"I thank you. I am sorry to trouble you."

"How utterly ridiculous this is," she said to herself, as she took the proffered seat in a most elegant apartment. "To think that I, Grace Carter, should be in such a scrape as this! That man is a true gentleman. How does he know what I may intend to carry off in my pocket while he is gone? What would Alice——"

The sound of a half suppressed cough in another part of the room startled her. She became conscious that she had been thinking aloud. Throwing, for the first time, a rapid glance around the room, her eyes met those of a gentleman who was almost hidden from her view by an angle of the room and the deep chair in which he was sitting. He rose from his seat, seeing himself discovered. Grace arose also, turning towards the door, for she heard the sound of returning footsteps.

"The lady is not here, Miss, I am sorry."

All Grace thought of now was to get out of her awkward position as soon as possible. The gentleman advanced to offer assistance, but Grace rapidly and somewhat incoherently uttered her thanks and apologies to the servant, fled, and drew a long breath of relief as she reached the sidewalk once more.

"I feel as if I had lived an age, and it is not fifteen minutes since I blundered into the first place. If that girl does not appear before I reach the next corner I shall go home without her. There she is this very minute, blissfully unconscious of the mischief I have been into."

"How nice; you are just in time, Grace. I told Mollie you might call for me, and I have been listening for the bell for some time. Did you have a pleasant call! Mollie was looking very lovely this morning; she had on a new wrapper that is extremely becoming."

"Mrs. Benton was indisposed, so that I did not see her at all," said Grace rather grimly.

Alice looked up and caught a queer expression on her cousin's face. "Why, what did you do all this time?" she asked.

Grace hesitated. "Can you keep it to yourself, if I tell you something?"

"Yes, indeed."

"Well, then, I have been making morning calls, on New Year's day, upon the elite of Beacon street, Boston."

"Grace Carter!"

"Precisely; that's just what I say." And half laughing, half rueful, she told the whole story.

Meanwhile, the gentleman who had been so suddenly disturbed in his quiet doze did not seem inclined to return to his chair.

"You say she gave her cousin's name as Miss Raymond, Alfred?"

"Yes, sir,'

"Very well. That will do. How long before dinner? I think I will go to the store after dinner. My headache seems to be better."

"What a face that girl had!" he continued, when left alone. "She must be a stranger in the city. She is not a Bostonian. A needle in a haystack! Yet I am bound to find her, and I will. Raymond, that is all I have to guide me."

Alfred went away chuckling to himself: "Mr. Frank's struck at last. With a country girl, too. But she is a little lady, that's a fact!" But Mr. Frank went to the store and studied the directory with great care.

He had been invited to a little New Year's party that evening, and as it was to be a very quiet, informal affair, he had consented to go, for, although belonging to one of the most aristocratic and wealthy families in the city, he was no society man. He wished now that he had not promised to go, for he wanted to take steps toward beginning his search for the apparition of the morning.

"Fortune favors the brave." As Mr. Ellis turned away after paying his respects to his hostess, his eyes met the very eyes that had looked into his that morning in his mother's parlor, and although they were instantly turned away the swift rush of color showed that he was recognized. With an adroit excuse about "a very striking resemblance," he soon gained the desired introduction and made himself so agreeable to the young lady that Grace forgot her determination to be frigidly polite, and ere long the two were chatting together like old friends, to the utter astonishment of those present who knew Ellis. Among his companions he was considered a "woman hater," and there he sat completely engrossed by a little, plainly dressed country girl.

* * * * *

The months fly swiftly, and again it is the eve of the new year. Come with me to a house in one of the pleasant suburbs of Boston. A few snowflakes are beginning to fall. Look! the door is opened and a servant stands on the threshold, and shading his eyes, peers into the surrounding gloom to see if there is a promise of a storm. We recognize Alfred. Let us slip past him into the light and warmth of the hall, and looking into the drawing room where the ruddy fire light is dancing before the open fire, and the taller has his arm thrown caressingly around the slight little figure at his side.

"Grace, my darling," he is saying, "I never can be thankful enough that you got into the wrong house last New Year's. It was the making of my fortune—and Alfred's," he adds, laughing.

"Do you know," Grace answers, demurely, but with the merry sparkle of her eyes as of old, "I am not sure, in the light of subsequent events, that it was the wrong house."

True to Life.

There is an article going the rounds entitled "How the girls go to sleep." The manner in which they go to sleep, according to the article, can't hold a candle to the way a married woman goes to sleep.

Instead of thinking what she should have attended to before going to bed, she thinks of it afterwards. While she is revolving these matters in her mind, and while snugly tucked up in bed, the old man is scratching his leg in front of the fire, and wondering how he will pay the next month's rent. Suddenly she exclaims:

"James, did you lock the door?"

"Which door?" says James.

"The cellar door," says she.

"No," says James.

"Well, you better go down and lock it, for I heard some one in the back yard last night."

Accordingly, James paddles down the stairs, and locks the door. About the time James returns, and is going to bed, she remarks:

"Did you shut the stair door?"

"No," says James.

"Well, if it is not shut, the cat will get up into the room."

"Let her come up, then," says James, ill naturedly.

"My goodness, no!" returns his wife, "she'd suck the baby's breath."

Then James paddles down stairs again and steps on a tack, and closes the stair door and curses the cat, and returns to the bed room. Just as he begins to climb into his couch, his wife observes:

"I forgot to bring up some water. Suppose you bring some up in the big tin."

And so James, with a muttered curse, goes down into the dark kitchen, and falls over a chair, and rasps all the tinware off the wall, in search of the big tin, and then jerks the stair door open and howls:

"Where the deuce are the matches?" She gives him minute directions where to find the matches, and adds that she would rather go and get the water herself than have the whole neighborhood raised about it. After which James finds the matches, procures the water, and comes up stairs and plunges into bed.

Presently his wife says:

"James, let's have an understanding about money matters. Now, next week, I've got to pay——"

"I don't know what you'll have to pay, and don't care," shouts James, as he lurches around, and jams his face against the wall, "all I want is sleep."

"That's all very well for you," snaps his wife, as she pulls the covers viciously; "you never think of the worry and trouble I have. And there is Araminta, who I believe is taking the measles."

"Let her take 'em," says James.

Hereupon she begins to cry softly, but about the time James is falling into a gentle doze, she punches him in the ribs with her elbow, and says:

"Did you hear that scandal about Mrs. Jones?"

"Where?" says James sleepily.

"Why, Mrs. Jones."

"I declare," says his wife, "you are getting more stupid, every day. You know Mrs. Jones that lives at No. 21? Well, day before yesterday, Susan Smith told Mrs. Thompson that Sam Baker has said that Mrs. Jones had——"

Here she pauses and listens? James snoring in profound slumber. With a snort of rage, she pulls all the covers off him, wraps up in them and lays awake until 2 a. m., thinking how badly used she is. And that is the way the married woman goes to sleep.

Garfield's Generosity.

Mr. Hurd, who used to be a Democratic member of congress from Ohio, tells an incident of the genial nature of Garfield: "It happened once that I—a young member—was called upon to close on the Democratic side of a debate, which Mr. Garfield was to close the next morning on behalf of the Republicans. I felt the responsibility; I was extremely anxious to make a reply which would do credit to myself and not disgrace my party; and I went to Garfield that night and pointed out my dilemma. I did not feel equal to the occasion of making an impromptu response to a speech which he was fully prepared to make. Like the man that he was—like a brother I might say—he told me what he was going to say, the whole line of his argument, and thus gave me the benefit of twenty-four hours' study in which to reply to him. You can understand my admiration, my love, my anxiety for that man.'

Not his Equal.

'I shall not resent your insulting language,' said an Arkansaw colonel to a man who called him a liar. 'You are not my equal in social standing, and I shall pay no attention to you.' The man slapped the colonel's face. 'I shall not resent any of your slaps, for I cannot afford to lower myself to your level.'

'You won't fight me, eh?'

'No, sir.'

'You don't challenge me because it would reflect discredit on you to meet me on the field?'

'You are correct.'

'Let's take a drink, then?'

'All right; I'm your man. Give me a mint toddy.'

Said the high school girl to her dearest friend: "It is not allowed in polite society to say 'He bit off more than he could chew.' The correct expression is, "He severed with his incisors more than he was able to masticate with his molars."

A Bible Baked in a Loaf of Bread.

There is a Bible in Lucas, in the State of Ohio, which was preserved by being baked in a loaf of bread. It now belongs to a Mr. Schebolt, who is a native of Bohemia, in Austria. This baked Bible was formerly the property of his grandmother, who was a faithful Protestant Christian. During one of the seasons when the Roman Catholics were persecuting the Protestants in that country, a law was passed that every Bible in the hands of the people should be given up to the priests, that it might be burnt. Those who loved their Bible had to contrive different ways in order to try and save the precious Book.

When the priest came round to search the house, it happened to be baking-day. Mrs. Schebolt, the grandmother of the present owner of the Bible, had a large family. She had just prepared a great batch of dough, when she heard that the priests were coming. She took her precious Bible, wrapped it carefully up, and put it in the centre of a huge mass of dough, which was to fill her largest bread tin, and stowed it away in the oven and baked it. The priests came and searched the house carefully through, but they did not find the Bible. When the search was over, and the danger passed the Bible was taken out and found uninjured.

The Strongest Man in the State.

From the West Chester News.

Colonel Ullman, of Phœnixville, is probably one of the strongest men in the State of Pennsylvania. His muscles are hardened to a wonderful degree. He has several times given an exhibition of his great strength in the presence of a few acquaintances. One of the feats that he is accustomed to perform is to take a heavy iron poker, such as is usually found about a bar-room stove, having a handle not less than half an inch in diameter, and by one or two vigorous blows across his arm between the elbow and wrist, bend the poker so badly that it can only be straightened again with great difficulty. Many persons are unwilling to believe it possible that any man can endure the pain caused by such a heavy blow on the part of the arm usually so sensitive, but it does not appear to incommode the Colonel in the least; hence their wonder grows as they witness the performance and then examine the arm and find it uninjured. We doubt whether another man in the State, other than a professional acrobat, can show a muscular system so wonderfully developed. The Colonel is a quiet, inoffensive man, averse to quarreling, and is altogether unknown in sporting circles.

Providence Sometimes Works in Curious Ways.

Exchange

There is one family in Indiana who will be safe from certain annoyances for the next year to come. Last month a piano man came along and put a piano into the parlor on trial. He was followed by the man with the parlor organ. Then came three different sewing machines, a $200 music box three $50 oil paintings, a parlor suit, a $75 mirror, a melodeon, a bookcase, two accordeons and several other articles he could pay for in monthly instalments if he saw fit. The old farmer welcomed every sort of an agent and they left every sort of an instrument ever devised by mortal man, until the farm house was a vast museum of natural curiosities. When the last agent disappeared the old house took fire from a defective flue and was burned to the ground, and not a single article left by the agents was saved. "Some call it one thing and some another," said the old man as he pocketed the insurance on the house and, "but I dunno, Providence sometimes works in curus ways. My gettin' burned out will give this district rest for a whole year to come."

What the Strike has Evolved.

The following story is credited to Corry: "A telegraph operator says a four-foot black-nake came down off the mountain the other day, straggled into the office and coolly coiled itself up on the table while he was out. On his return it began darting out its tongue, but showed no disposition to move. He got a piece of copper wire, fastened one end to the battery, then stretched it across the snake's tail. Another wire was stretched in front of the snake so as to annoy it. The next time it darted out its tongue it touched the wire, receiving a terrible shock. This made it so mad that it grabbed the wire in its mouth and could not let go. The battery was shaken up, and the snake began a series of gyrations never before seen on any stage. When killed its body was so highly magnetized that nails and pieces of railroad iron stuck to it." This is the best and most original snake story of the season.

The Two Best Doctors.

"For all minor aches and ills Doctor Let-alone is the most uniformly and happily successful physician I ever knew, but in the severer forms of disease, it is always safest, wisest and best to seek promptly the advice of an educated practioner; and a fortunate thing would it be for humanity if not an atom or a drop of physic were ever taken unless specially prescribed by those who have the advantage of a thorough medical education."—Hall's Journal of Health

A lady was travelling in a stage coach with a troublesome barking dog in her lap. A gentleman, a fellow passenger, complained of the annoyance. "Dear me, sir!" exclaimed the lady, with an air of astonishment, "I wonder you complain of my dog, everybody admires it. It's a real Peruvian." "I don't complain of your Peruvian dog, madam," replied he, "but I wish he would give us less of his Peruvian bark."

Little five-year-old Annie, who was suffering from a bad cold, went to visit an auntie. During the day she related her various successes at school, and ended by declaring that she could read a good deal better than Sabrina, who was eight years old. "Well," questioned auntie, "wouldn't it sound better if some one else said it?" "Yes," answered Annie, with a sober countenance, "I think it would; I have such a bad cold I can't say it very well."

Time's Changes.

A traveling man who makes yearly visits to a certain country store in Kentucky drove up to the establishment the other day and asked to see the boss.

"How are you, Smith?" he said when a very depressed looking man came to the door.

"How are you? Who did you want to see?"

"I wanted to see the boss."

"All right, I'll call—"

"Why, ain't you the boss?"

"No, not any more," and looked over his shoulder in a frightened way.

"You were when I was here a year ago."

"Yes, I know, but you see I've got married since then."

A Plunge to Death.

MEMPHIS, Aug. 22.—A west bound passenger train on the Memphis and Little Rock railroad, which left here at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, met with an accident last night four miles west of Forest City, Arkansas.

While crossing a short trestle a broken rail caused two second-class passenger coaches and the baggage and express cars to go through the trestle, killing F. B. Salinger and Harry F. Oldberg, merchants of Cotton Plant, Arkansas, and John Adair, formerly foreman of pile drivers of the Little Rock road. James Whitestock, a claim agent of Memphis and Charleston, had a leg broken. Several other passengers received injuries, but not of a serious nature.

A Scene of a Summer Night.

It is night. Outside darkness reigns but all within is bright, warm and cheerful. The slats of the blinds are open to admit the night air and relieve the oppressiveness. Two ladies are busily engaged near the light—one sewing, the other reading a book. Suddenly a rustling noise is heard, a dark figure an inch or more in length hovers near them and as the lady who is sewing glances up she utters a shriek. Then the lady who is reading screams and leaps almost two yards away. "What is it?" she asks. "A bug—a fearful creature—I guess it's a pincher, or a snake-feeder, or something," gasps the first lady in return, and continues: "Oh! just see it! It's flying at me—now it's on you—where can it be? Oh! I wish I had something to strike it with—Oh!" The final "oh!" is another scream as she sees the bug darting toward her again. In the meanwhile the bug is thrown into a state of great agitation. It had never heard such screams before, and in the effort to escape it darts into the flame of the gas and burns its wings; flies against the wall and falls to the ground for an instant from sheer exhaustion; then mounts to the ceiling again. By this time one lady has regained courage enough to pursue the bug with her book which is tightly closed for the purpose and the gilt binding of which is in serious danger of injury. The other lady re-enters the room armed with a broom. Frantic strokes of both book and broom cleave the air; the ladies almost faint with excitement and heat; they repeatedly utter startling shrieks, until at last the bug becomes entangled in the meshes of the broom. The ladies breathe freer and hold the broom off at arm's length. They place it carefully upon the floor and one lady leaps upon it. After enough dancing and tramping on the broom to crush a hundred bugs the ladies look for the poor creature once again and find it dead. With a glance of triumph they congratulate each other on their grand exploit, and by the time they become composed again—another bug (only a little moth) is attracted in by the light and a similar scene is enacted again. Such are the nightly occurrences in many houses in Bellefonte just now.

—It has been fully demonstrated that there are at least two other persons in Bellefonte who can eat as much watermelon as Ed. Rankin.

A Smash-Up of Trains.

STRUTHERS, Ohio., Aug. 21.—Through the neglect of some one the switch at the east end of the Pittsburg and Lake Erie yard at Hazleton, two miles east of Youngstown, was left open, and passenger train No. 5, due at Youngstown from Pittsburg at 11.30 a. m., ran into the rear end of a freight train standing on the main track, telescoped the caboose and plunged through a coke car, completely wrecking both cars and badly wrecking the engine of the passenger train, which was running at the rate of thirty miles an hour. Fireman Louis Klontz jumped and was badly bruised and cut about the face, hands and body. It is not thought that he is fatally hurt. William Johnson, of Cleveland, an express messenger, was considerably bruised and had his right arm sprained. Charles Walsh, baggage man, was severely injured. The train caught fire, but the flames were extinguished with buckets of water.

Funeral of Judge Black.

YORK, Pa., Aug. 21.—The funeral of Judge Black to-day was by far the largest which ever took place in York. All business was suspended and the streets were thronged with people as the funeral cortege passed. Many distinguished people were present from abroad. The pall bearers were General Hancock, Judge Gibson Wickes, George Small, General S. W. Crawford, Chief Justice Mercur, A. B. Farquhar, George H. Sprigg, Judge Bear and W. L. Small. Religious services were held at the residence conducted by Rev. Dr. Power, of Washington. The remains were interred at Prospect Hill cemetery.

TUTT'S PILLS CURE TORPID LIVER.
TUTT'S PILLS IMPART APPETITE.

DR. TUTT has succeeded in combining in these pills the heretofore antagonistic qualities of a STRENGTHING, PURGATIVE, and a PURIFYING TONIC.
Their first apparent effect is to increase the appetite by causing the food to properly assimilate. Thus the system is nourished, and by their tonic action on the digestive organs, regular and healthy evacuations are produced.
The rapidity with which PERSONS TAKE ON FLESH while under the influence of these pills, indicates their adaptability to nourish the body, hence their efficacy in curing nervous debility, melancholy, dyspepsia, wasting of the muscles, sluggishness of the liver, chronic constipation, and imparting health & strength to the system. Sold everywhere.

In the Path of the Cyclone.

CHICAGO, Aug. 23.—A Rochester, Minn., special says: One-third of the buildings are in ruins. Twenty-four people are dead, but a number of these have not been identified, owing to their frightful mutilation by the storm. The storm swept through Dodge and Olmstead counties, causing greater destruction than the cyclone a month ago. The damage in Rochester will reach fully $200,000. When the storm struck the Congregational church thirty-five children had just returned from a picnic, but none were hurt. The list of the dead and wounded is the same as already reported. Helen Beck, of Ashland, Dodge county, was taken up by the storm while in the field and has not since been heard from. Olsen, wife and daughter, of Canister, Dodge county, were killed. Great damage was done in St. Charles, Utica and in the southern part of Wabasha county.

A Kasson, Minn., special says: The cyclone passed about six miles south of this place, doing great damage to persons, buildings and crops. Christian Oleson's wife was killed and his oldest daughter had a leg broken; Ole Anderson's wife badly hurt and cannot live, his mother-in-law killed; his brick house unroofed and all other buildings destroyed.

DODGE CENTER, Minn., Aug. 23.—Crops in the path of the cyclone, two miles south of here, were all destroyed and heavy damage done to buildings. A man named H. Fibrecht and his wife were working in a field when they saw the storm and clung to each other. When it struck them he was knocked senseless and she was blown to a considerable distance. She was found this morning in a horribly mutilated condition, one arm being twisted off and the other nearly. A number of other persons were less badly injured.

Remembering Judge Black.

SARATOGA, Aug. 24.—At the meeting of the American Bar Association to-day the report of the committee appointed to consider the subject of the delays in the United States supreme court and the various plans for the relief of the same was referred to the committee on judicial administration and remedial procedure. A paper by Judge Thomas, of Missouri, on the abuses of the writ of habeas corpus was referred to the committee on jurisprudence and law reform, the committee to report at the annual meeting. Resolutions of respect to the memory of the late Judge J. S. Black, of Pennsylvania, were passed by a rising vote. The convention adjourned sine die at 1.15. The annual dinner took place at the Grand Union hotel at 8.30 this evening.

A Gala Day in 'Frisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 24.—The inauguration of the foundation of the Garfield monument took place at noon to-day, under the auspices of the Grand Masonic Lodge of California, assisted by the Grand Encampment of Knights Templar of the United States, at Golden Gate Park. Over one hundred thousand persons witnessed the ceremonies.

The procession was divided into four divisions, comprising United States troops, members of the National Guard of California, Grand Army of the Republic, Knights Templar and members of California Masonic lodges. It was the largest ever witnessed on the Pacific coast. It extended over a mile and a half and was an hour and three quarters in passing a given point. The day being a public holiday the number of visitors from interior towns was greater than on any previous day of the week. The streets through which the procession passed were jammed for a distance of a mile. The scene presented in the park was a magnificent one. On three sides the surrounding hills were covered with a dense mass of spectators. As the procession arrived those forming it drew up in the form of a circle about the base of the monument, close to which a grand stand had been erected for the Grand Masonic officers, whose duty it was to perform the ceremony of laying the corner stone. When all had fallen into place prayer was offered by the Grand Chaplain, followed by a Masonic ode, which was chanted by all present. Hon. Horace Davis, ex-member of Congress in a short speech invited the Grand Master of California to lay the corner-stone of the monument to the second martyred President. A record of the contents of the stone, gold and silver and nickel coins of the present year, together with an account of the assault upon President Garfield, his death and funeral ceremonies, was read, after which the Grand Master poured in corn, wine and oil, and, tapping the stone, pronounced it well and truly laid. An oration on Garfield's life and services, followed by the Benediction, closed the services. Salutes were fired from the forts at the termination of the ceremonies.

The Garfield Controversy.

NEW YORK, August 24.—The Sun publishes the following:

JAMESTOWN, R. I., July 28, 1883.—Dear Sir: I am an old friend of Stanley Matthews, and took an active part in having him confirmed. I am sorry to see the New York papers charge that you agreed to subscribe a large sum to the Garfield election fund upon a bargain with Garfield that he would, if elected president, send to the senate the name of Stanley Matthews to fill a vacancy occasioned by resignation, death or otherwise on the supreme bench. Will you be so kind as to tell me, frankly, whether there is any truth in this, or whether you made any arrangement at all to have him placed upon the supreme bench? I feel I have a right to ask this of you, because I worked hard and in good faith for his confirmation, having known him from my boyhood and believed in his great ability and integrity.

Very truly yours,
[Signed.] WASHINGTON MCLEAN.

To Jay Gould, Esq., New York City.

Gould's Reply.

No. 195 BROADWAY, N. Y., July 31, 1883.—Dear Sir: I have your letter. The story that I had offered any money to secure the nomination of Stanley Matthews or any one else is a pure fabrication. I had no bargain with General Garfield of any sort, directly or indirectly. My acquaintance with Mr. Matthews was not intimate; indeed, now that I write, I remember that it was at your own personal solicitation, after his nomination, that I asked Mr. Plumb, by an open telegram, to aid, if consistent, in his confirmation. Matthews was never my counsel. The Texas and Pacific was then controlled by Thomas A. Scott, and was at that time a hostile interest to those in which I was interested.

Yours, truly,
JAY GOULD.

To Washington McLean, Jamestown, R. I.

Knights Templar Elect Officers.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 23.—The Knights Templar to-day elected the following officers: Grand Master, Robert E. Withers, of Virginia; Deputy Grand Master, Charles Boone, of New York; Generalissimo, John P. S. Gobin, of Pennsylvania; Captain General, Hugh McCuddy, of Michigan; Senior Warden, J. Larue Thomas, of Kentucky; Junior Warden, George C. Perkins, of California. The treasurer and recorder were re-elected. The ceremonies incident to the inauguration of the Garfield monument will take place to morrow, which has been declared a state holiday. All business will be suspended.

More Effective than Divorce.

BUFFALO, Aug. 22.—Mrs. Josephine Bochere was arrested here last night for attempting to procure poison with which to kill her husband. She made her wants known to a druggist, who told her to call again. In the meantime the police were notified, and on the woman's second visit they were secreted in the drug store and overheard her demands. The woman was given a harmless mixture. Mr. Bochere has on several occasions been taken ill and believes that his sickness was caused by poison being placed in his food. Mrs. Bochere is possessed of some property and has lately been receiving attentions from one of her boarders.

A Steamer Lost at Sea.

MONTREAL, Aug. 26.—There is no longer any doubt that the White Star steamship Ludwig has gone down at sea. She carried a large cargo of freight, and a few steerage passengers on her outward voyage from Antwerp on July 2. Her sister ship, the Helvetia, arrived at this port on Friday, and Captain Smith, her commander, reports that nothing was seen or heard of the Ludwig, though he followed her track and was on the lookout for her. The Helvetia had a very dangerous passage. On the morning of the 15th instant, when between 150 and 200 miles from the Straits of Belle Isle, icebergs were noticed, and the order given to shut off steam. Moving on slowly, they found themselves surrounded by icebergs, which were successfully avoided. The captain states that it was the first time in his knowledge that icebergs had been met so far from shore and that they were so he thought, due to westerly winds. Notwithstanding the bad weather and icebergs, the Helvetia made the passage in seventeen days, whereas the Ludwig, which sailed from Antwerp on the 2d ult., has now been out 51 days. The passengers, 26 in number, were, with one exception, farmers and laborers, with their families. The exception is the brilliant young violinist, Emile Hone, a native of Montreal and a musician whose career was regarded as promising.

A Woman and Two Children Missing.

MT. CARMEL, August 26.—A few evenings ago Mrs. Thomas Davis and her two children suddenly disappeared, and nothing has been heard from them since. Sorefooted and almost crazed, Mr. Davis arrived here Friday night from Shenandoah, whither he had gone in search of his wife, whose parents live there. The parents were astonished when told of the singular affair. They had not seen their daughter for several weeks. Presuming that the mother and children had started for Shenandoah afoot, lost their way and fallen into one of the many breaches that checker the roadside, a large party was organized, visited several caveins and made a thorough search, but to no purpose. What prompted the woman to so suddenly leave her home no one can divine. The husband and wife had been living happily together. The search for the missing ones is still going on.

At Chautauqua.

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., Aug. 24—The devotional meeting at 9 o'clock this morning by Dr. B. M. Adams, of Meriden, Conn., was attended by over 2,000 people, and much interest was shown. The children's prize spelling match took place this morning and excited much interest and amusement. Miss Fannie Gifford, of Jamestown, N. Y.; Miss Florence Kerr, of Mercer, Pa., and Miss Ellie Earl, of Union City, Pa., were awarded prizes equal in value.

This afternoon six thousand persons assembled to hear the singing of federal and confederate war songs and addresses by Judge Albion W. Tourgee, of Georgia. Dr. Vincent asked the soldiers of either army present to come to the platform, and two hundred presented themselves. A letter was read from Senator Colquit, of Georgia. An original song, "Our Nation Forever," by Wallace Bruce, was sung by the congregation. The services were the most impressive ever held at Chautauqua. Several old confederates participated. Ex Governor Pierpont, of West Virginia, was on the platform.

A Morning German.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 23—A novel entertainment was given here today by Judge Hugh T. Dickey and Mrs. Dickey. It was in the nature of a morning German. Germans in the evening are frequent enough, but rarely has Newport witnessed a regular affair of this nature given in full daylight. This fact, however, added to the attractiveness of the event, gave it an added charm. Three hundred invitations had been issued and the gathering which responded was made up of the very best representatives of the Summer society of Newport. Great preparations had been made for the event, and no labor or expense spared to make it what it was—a genuine and acknowledged success and the finest society entertainment of the season thus far. The floral decorations represented many hundred dollars in value. Cut flowers and rare and costly exotic plants were used with lavish profusion, covering the ceilings, walls and floors almost completely, filling some of the rooms and concealing the other decorations. The grounds and house were a perfect bower of beauty.

A Grand Masonic Temple in Erie.

ERIE, Aug. 22.—The Erie Masons have in prospect the formation of a stock company, with a capital of $200,000, for the erection of a grand Masonic Temple in this city, the corner-stone to be laid next year. A committee was appointed to-day and the temple project will soon assume definite shape.

Vesuvius Shaking up Things.

NAPLES, Aug. 22.—Mount Vesuvius is in a state of remarkable activity. The continuous trembling of the soil has resulted in considerable injury to buildings and to the railway running up the mountain.

A Catholic Bishop's Death.

LONDON, Aug. 22.—The Right Rev. Francis K. Amherst, D. D., a well-known Catholic prelate and formerly Bishop of Northampton, is dead.

A Riot with Town Authorities

MANNINGTON, W. Va., Aug. 26.—This place was the scene of a desperate riot yesterday morning between a party of lumbermen, from Buffalo creek, and the town police force and a large number of citizens, in which stones, revolvers, clubs and knives were freely used, and which resulted in serious wounds to a half dozen of the combatants, one of whom, Walter Furbee, is fatally hurt. The trouble grew out of the obstruction of the turnpike which runs through the town by the town authorities. This obstruction has for a long time been a source of great disadvantage to the lumbermen. Their petition to council for redress having been treated with contempt, they determined to take the affair into their own hands, a collision with the police resulting. The county authorities quelled the disturbance and made many arrests.

The Fire Record.

MT. STERLIGN, Ky., Aug. 23.—The tannery of Reed & Pearsall burned Wednesday night. The cause is supposed to be the work of an incendiary, as it has been idle two months. Loss $10,000; insurance, $6,000.

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 23.—An incendiary fire at Sunny Side, in a coal mine, caused a loss yesterday of $10,000, insurance, $6,000. Mrs. Jarber, 60 years of age, seeing the fire, died from fright.

MILFORD, Mass., August 23.—A fire in the woods south of Milford has burned over one hundred acres. The dwelling houses are now threatened. The drought is very serious in this section.

BIG RAPIDS, Mich., August 23.—Tuesday night, ten miles east of this place the lumber camp of Foster, Blackman & Co., was burned. Loss, $30,000; insurance, $18,000.

Death of a Representative.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 23.—The death of Hon. J. McDowell Sharpe, a member of the house of representatives from Franklin county, was announced to the senate by Senator Wagner and the senate then adjourned until Monday evening at 9 o'clock.

In the house the chaplain, Rev. Dr. Keeling, in his prayer, referred to the death of Hon. J. McDowell Sharpe, and spoke of him as an able and accomplished scholar, a genial gentleman, and a faithful friend.

The death of Mr. Sharpe was then announced by Mr. Woods, of Franklin, and on motion of Mr. MacReynolds, of Bucks, a committee was appointed to attend the funeral and draft resolutions expressive of the sense of the house; that the desk of the deceased be draped in mourning for the space of thirty days, and that as a mark of respect the house do now adjourn. The motion was agreed to, and the house then adjourned.

The St. Louis Mystery.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 22.—The feeling with regard to the disappearance of Colonel Churchill's daughter has somewhat abated. The discovery of letters left behind her, showing that she was badly stage struck, leads to the belief that she has run away to join some theatrical company. The police are taking but little interest in the case, but the family and friends of the girl still insist that some dreadful doom has overtaken her.

The Gettysburg Encampment.

GETTYSBURG, Aug 24.—About four hundred tents are up for the State Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, which opens here tomorrow. Excursion trains will be run from Reading, Baltimore and Philadelphia and large arrivals are expected on the regular trains.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

The Tyrone correspondent of the Altoona Tribune has the following to say in regard to the Snyder—Wood wedding which is announced elsewhere:

At 2 o'clock on Thursday, by Rev. E. Edwards, of Milesburg, Mr. J. Clark Snyder, of Milesburg, and Miss Alice Wood, of Snow Shoe, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. While we are not personally acquainted with the gentleman who has been so fortunate in his choice of a life-partner, we cannot help but unite with a host of friends in congratulating him upon securing for a life-partner the accomplished and beautiful young lady who has made him happy. We wish the happy couple unfading joy and continued prosperity. Miss Wood that was is a sister of William Wood, jeweler.

—General James A. Beaver, accompanied by his young sons, returned on Thursday from a tour of the state which was made in an open carriage, since about the 1st of this month. Their journey extended over the route originally marked out by them with a week's stay at Conneaut Lake during the encampment of the Second brigade. The General is as sunburned as a native of India and seems to have increased considerably in weight since his departure. The 450 miles of the journey was made without any accident to mar their pleasure.

—Rev. Stahr has resigned the pastorate of the Lock Haven Reformed church, and preached his farewell sermon last Sunday. Rev. G. W Gerhard, a recent graduate of the Theological Seminary at Lancaster will be his successor.

—Wednesday morning was quite cool while the afternoon was literally as hot as blazes.

—A little daughter of Mr. John Wagner met with what might have proved a fatal accident on Thursday, but which, marvelous to relate, was entirely without serious consequences. She, with other children, was standing on the high cliff in the rear of Mrs. Dare's residence overlooking Water street, throwing stones to the street below. In throwing a stone the little girl lost her balance and fell a distance of eighteen feet. It was at first feared that internal injuries had certainly resulted from a fall of so great a distance among the rocks, but such fears were fortunately not realized.

—A special meeting of the school board was held Friday evening to take into consideration the advisability of refurnishing the four school rooms on the second floor of the building. No definite decision was arrived at, the question being postponed for further consideration. Of course, the rooms need refurnishing, but lack of money is the obstacle which deters the board from incurring this additional expense.

—Mr. d'Invilliers, the assistant State geologist, who has been prospecting for iron ore on property in Nittany Valley, is much surprised with the rich deposits which he has found. He should be considered excellent authority on the subject, as his great experience and learning, added to his recent investigations, enable him to understand the resources as well as any one.

—Prof. I. Thornton Osmond, of State College, affirms that he, and he alone, is erecting the new residence at that place, and Prof. Bernard has nothing to do with it, the News correspondent to the contrary notwithstanding. We believe that the public will accept the Professor's statement as correct.

—The banquet tendered to President Judge Orvis by the Huntingdon bar on Thursday evening was a brilliant affair. Judge Mayer and numerous other distinguished guests were present.

—There is a prospect that but little business will be transacted in court this week. Judge J. G. Larimer is too ill to be present, and the other associate judgeship is still vacant.

—In the Trinity M. E. church at Philipsburg last Sunday 160 probationers were received into full membership.

Serious Fire at Mifflin.

This morning P. B. Crider & Son received intelligence of a serious fire in the town of Mifflin, destroying property valued at $80,000. Knowing that the Altoona Tribune always contains the important occurrences in all the surrounding towns we awaited the receipt of that journal for a more detailed account of the conflagration and were not disappointed.

The fire originated in the large stable of the Juniata hotel owned by Mr. Foreman, at 2 o'clock on Saturday morning, and before any efforts to extinguish it were made it had communicated to the hotel building and the residence of Mr. Jacob S. Thomas. Hence the flames leaped across the alley to a large frame building occupied by the Franciscus Hardware company. Mifflin has no appliances for extinguishing fires, but at this juncture the Red Star Hook and Ladder Company of Patterson put in appearance, and to their efforts during the further progress of the fire much of the credit for saving valuable property is due. From the Franciscus building the fire sped onward to E. J. Parker's building and then to Mrs. Margaret Belford's building. About 5 o'clock a. m. the Henderson Steam Fire Engine of Lewistown arrived, but it was 6 o'clock before it was taken from the cars and put in operation. Buildings were torn down by the hook and ladder company to prevent the further spread of the flames and the Lewistown engine threw water on the flames until 11 o'clock. The fire is a sad and well-nigh irreparable loss to Mifflin, as the territory burned over constituted the principal business portion of the town. In addition to the losses on buildings above referred to the following were also sufferers: Mrs. E. J. Kapner, J. Yeakley & Son, Dr. L. Banks & Co., F. Espenshade, C. F. Hirkel & Co., Juniata Herald office, John Etka and James H. Simmons.

—The contract for the building of the foundation for the new Catholic church has been awarded to Mr. Jesse Stewart, who is certainly a very excellent mechanic and has a reputation second to none. As the Rev. Father McArdle very aptly says: Mr. Stewart seems to understand thoroughly the way to build a foundation. His appearance indicates that he has built a fine foundation of physical health and strength for himself and can be trusted to build a good foundation of any kind for other people. There is much truth in the Reverend McArdle's argument. In this connection it is also in order to state that Mr. Durang, of Philadelphia, is the architect of the new edifice. He is quite a noted architect and does not often accept engagements outside of the large cities. He has refused to perform similar work for churches in this vicinity, but was induced to give the coming edifice the benefit of his skill. Nothing more than the foundation walls will be built this year, however. The work of excavation will begin next Monday.

—One of the antiques found his way into this office on Thursday. He says his name is Count Zowaski and that he was banished from Russia to Siberia in the year 1851. He escaped and found his way to America. He was 92 years of age in July. He is now on his way from Bath, N. Y., where he has been in a soldier's home, to Washington, D. C., where his presence will be necessary in November next at the time his term of banishment expires. His appearance accords with the narrative which he relates, as he is certainly very old and talks with a broken accent although he tells a straight story. He pronounces the Grand Duke Alexis a tyrant and speaks of Russia in even severer terms. The Count walks with a cane. He is extremely dirty and repulsive in appearance and we advise our readers not to put too much faith in his pretentions as he may be a foreign fraud.

—Mr. Samuel Basior, who is in the employ of Mr. Demp Meek at Buffalo Run, was so unfortunate on Thursday at noon as to have one of his lower limbs broken. He had entered a shed on the property of Agnew Sellers' to escape from the rain when his horse stumbled and fell on him with the above result.

—Rev. S. O. Wylie, D. D., pastor of the Second Reformed Presbyterian church of Philadelphia, died on Wednesday. We believe he was related to Rev. W. T. Wylie, at one time pastor of the Presbyterian church in Bellefonte, and has preached in the church here. He was 64 years of age.

—A branch railroad of a mile or more in length is to be built to connect with the Bellefonte and Buffalo Run R. R. It extends from the B. and B. R. above Benner Waddle's, passes Mr. Samuel Gray's and continues on in the same direction a short distance.

A QUEEN OF THE STAGE.

"HER SECOND LOVE," AND THE IMPORTANT SECRET SHE REVEALS FOR THE BENEFIT OF WOMEN.

New York World.

Several years ago the American public were aroused by the entree upon the stage of a little lady who had been previously but little announced. She was one of an innumerable number of aspirants for public favor and had no instrumentality, aside from her own talents, to cause recognition. In spite of this fact, however, she quickly achieved a warm place in the heart of the public which she has continued to hold ever since. When it was announced, therefore, that Miss Maude Granger would star the coming season in the play "Her Second Love," written by Mr. John A. Stevens, it was only natural that unusual interest should be manifested, not only in theatrical circles, but in other branches of the community. This was especially the case, as it was known that Miss Granger had, for the past year, been in exceedingly delicate health, and the determination to star in a strong emotional play was the more surprising. One of the staff of this paper was accordingly deputised to see the popular lady and verify the rumor or announce its incorrectness.

Miss Granger's countenance is familiar to nearly every one in the United States. It is a face once seen never to be forgotten. Features remarkable in their outline and contour are surmounted by a pair of large and deep eyes indicative of the greatest soul power. It is easy to see where Miss Granger obtains the ability to portray characters of the most emotional nature. She possesses within herself the elements of feeling without which no emotion can be conveyed to the audience. The man of news found the lady at her home in this city and was accorded a quiet welcome. It was evident at once that she was in greatly improved health, which the expression and color of her countenance both indicated.

"Is it true, Miss Granger, that you contemplate a starring tour the coming season?"

"Yes, indeed. My season begins in Chicago on the 16th of July. From there I go to San Francisco and then play the remainder of the season through the eastern and western states."

"Are you confident your health will permit such an undertaking?"

A ringing laugh was the first reply to this question, after which she said:

"Certainly. It is true that I have been ill for the past two years, but now I am wholly recovered. Few people can have any idea of the strain a conscientious actress undergoes in essaying an emotional part. It is necessary to put one's whole soul into the work in order to rightly portray the character. This necessitates an utter abandonment of one's personality and an assumption of the character portrayed. If this is an emotional part it is necessary to feel the same emotions as the part is supposed to feel. For more than a year I actually cried each night in certain passages of a part I was playing. The audience considered it art. Probably it was, but those were none the less real tears and the effect was none the less trying upon my health."

"But do you anticipate avoiding this in the future?"

"Not in the least. I expect to have just as great a strain as before, but with restored health and a knowledge of how to retain it I do not fear."

"You speak of a 'knowledge of how to retain health.' Will you please explain what you mean by that?"

"You must be aware that women by their very natures are subject to troubles and afflictions unknown to the sterner sex. The name of these troubles is legion, but in whatever form they may come they are weaknesses which interfere with every ambition and hope in life. I believe thousands of noble women are to-day suffering agonies of which even their best friends and relatives know little or nothing, and when I reflect upon it I confess that it makes me sad. Now all this misery arises largely from an ignorance of the laws of life or a neglect to carefully observe them. I speak from the depths of a bitter experience in saying this, and am thankful I know the means of restoration, and how to remain in perfect health."

"Please explain more fully."

"Well, I have found a remedy which seems specially adapted for this very purpose. It is pure and palatable and controls the health and life as, I believe, nothing else will. It is really invaluable and if all the women in America were to use it I am quite sure most of the suffering and many deaths might be avoided."

"What is this wonderful remedy?"

"Warner's Safe Cure."

"And you use it?"

"Constantly."

"And hence believe you will be able to go through the coming season successfully?"

"I am quite sure of it."

"A few questions more, Miss Granger. Will you please give me a list of the parts you have created and the plays you have taken part in since your first appearance in public?"

"I first played for some time with the amateurs in New York and Brooklyn. I then went to the Union Square theatre for two seasons, after that to the Boston Globe for one season and then to Booth's theatre in this city. Next I supported John McCollough and afterwards starred in Juliet, Camille, Rosalind, etc. Subsequently I created the part of Cicily Blaine in the Galley Slave and also starred in Two Nights in Rome, playing the part of Antonia. The past year I have been playing in the Planter's Wife and the coming season, as I have said, will be devoted to Her Second Love."

As the writer was returning home he fell into a train of musing and wondered if all the women in this land who are suffering could only know Miss Granger's experience and the remarkable results achieved by the pure remedy she used, how much suffering might be avoided and how much happiness secured.

A Picnic at Martha Furnace.

MARTHA FURNACE, Aug. 22, 1883.

MR. EDITOR: It was your correspondent's privilege to attend a Union picnic at Martha Furnace on Saturday, the 18th. A large concourse of people was in attendance and all seemed to enjoy the pleasures of the day. The different Sabbath schools in this vicinity were represented by such as were able to attend, Rev. W. A. Ridge, of Eagleville, delivering the address. Music was rendered by the Milesburg brass band. Although this musical organization was but recently organized and equipped and has had the advantage of but little experience, the music was well rendered and the selections were appropriate. At the present rate of progress it will soon be one of the most proficient organizations in the county. The members are composed of the best young men in Milesburg and their genteel deportment wins for them the favor of all. They are held in high esteem in Martha and vicinity. Mr. John P. Boileau, the business manager, is a very capable young man with considerable business tact and judgment.

The festival recently given by them was successful financially.

LATROBE.

The Alleghenies in September.

The growing disposition to visit the mountains in September is evidenced by the many inquiries as to the date of closing of the Mountain House at Cresson, on the Pennsylvania Railroad. This palatial hotel is located away up on the summit, 2300 feet above ocean level, and in the vicinity of scenery famous for its grandeur and beauty. To accommodate those desiring to spend a portion of September (the choicest month in the year) in the Alleghenies, the Mountain House will remain open until October 1st, and after September 10th the hotel will make a reduction in rates.

—Rev. J. F. DeLong, of Bellefonte, and Rev. C. W. E. Seigel, of Houtzdale, says the Philipsburg Journal, were in the city on Monday visiting the Reformed families and making arrangements to organize a Reformed congregation in Philipsburg in the near future. The Reformed church is one of the oldest and also most numerous of the Protestant denominations, being started by Zwingle and Calvin in Switzerland at the same time that the Lutheran denomination was started by Luther in Saxony. We welcome this denomination into our midst and hope they may succeed in building up a large and flourishing congregation.

—The first house on Beaver street is in process of erection. It is located on the corner of Ridge and Beaver and is but the precursor of many other structures soon to be commenced. On Curtin street, Mr. Buck's residence is almost completed and Mr. Bible's is making progress. Mr. Curtin's residence is now ready for the brick. A four-inch water pipe is being laid from Allegheny street the entire length of Curtin street and will be extended to Beaver street this fall. Thus it will be seen that Bellefonte is growing in the direction of that pleasant locality.

—The engine of the afternoon freight train that usually pulls out of Bellefonte about 2:30 o'clock, left the track on Friday afternoon near the depot. Conductor Woodring and his corps of employes soon arrived and adjusted the engine on the track in about an hour. It did not pull out, however, until after the 5 o'clock passenger train departed. To add to the excitement along the railroad, an adventuresome small lad was almost run over by the in-coming 5 o'clock train.

—Mr. John Derstine, of Lamb street, has recently built a substantial 6 foot walk in front of his residence. It is an improvement.

Notice to Contractors.

There will be a public letting of a contract for the building of a school house in Curtin township, at Quay's school house, on Saturday, September 1. For plans, specifications, etc., address M. J. McCloskey, Secretary, Romola, Centre county, Pa.

Business Notices and Other Items.

We have just received our new Fall and Winter Woolens. Call and leave your order. MONTGOMERY & Co., Tailors.

—About a dozen Centre county citizens are visiting the Gettysburg encampment.

—Spices and canned goods of all kinds at Harry Teats & Co.'s grocery store.

—Charles F. Cook conducted the services in the Y. M. C. A. rooms on Sunday afternoon.

—Patronize those careful and competent grocers, Harry Teats & Co.

—A company of male vocalists located near the big spring sang quite prettily on Sunday night.

—Sechler's store is stocked from end to end with superior groceries.

—Mr. Wesley Corman had one of his hands painfully injured the other day in a threshing machine.

—All aboard for Sechler's grocery store! First come, first served.

—The numerous friends of Miss Mamie Butts invaded her mother's residence last Wednesday evening, bringing with them baskets filled with choice eatables. It was the occasion of Miss Mamie's birthday, exactly which one we won't state, but it might possibly be the 13th. Well, the hours were spent enjoyably and the young folks separated with the hope that their lively young hostess will live to celebrate a hundred or more similarly pleasant occasions.

—M. Gratien, an aeronaut of Paris, was carried four miles suspended from a balloon the other day, the rope from the air ship being wrapped around two of his fingers which afforded his only support. When the balloon descended he was dragged half a mile along the ground. Strange to relate, he escaped with his life. After reading such a horrible story it is pleasant to remember that the very best groceries in the world are in Sechler's store and that if our readers call soon they will get something nice at a bargain.

—The Loring Band of the Presbyterian church met last Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Williams on Howard street.

—A New York minister considers it a favorable indication when a man wants to marry his deceased wife's sister, as he has doubtless been made aware of all her faults and enters the matrimonial state again with full knowledge of what it will be like. After they are married, however, they will, ten chances to one, come to Bellefonte on their wedding trip and sample Sechler's groceries. Then they will settle near enough to get all their supplies of Sechler, and live happy ever after.

—Mr. Cy Weaver has erected a neat fence around the rear part of his premises on Howard street.

—Will be sold to-day—a large quantity of groceries at Harry Teats & Co.'s store.

—Mrs. Wm. Montgomery, of Howard, says the L. H. Journal, has the flower wonder of the season. It is a scarlet and purple fuchsia which has 500 buds and blossoms.

—Harry Teats & Co.'s store, opposite the Rush House, is the place to buy groceries.

THE LATEST NEWS.

In Memory of Judge Black.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The following circular, announcing the death of Judge Black, was issued from the state department to-day:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The president directs the undersigned to perform the painful duty of announcing to the people of the United States that Jeremiah S. Black, formerly secretary of state, and distinguished by faithful services in various public trusts, departed this life at 2 o'clock on the morning of the 19th inst. As a mark of respect it is hereby directed that the department of state be closed on Tuesday, August 21st, the day of the funeral; that the building be draped for thirty days, and the flag be placed at half mast until after the funeral (Signed)

FREDERICK T. FRELINGHUYSEN,
Secretary of State.

The following announcement was also made from the department of justice:

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20.—The death of so eminent a citizen and jurist as Jeremiah S. Black, of Pennsylvania, which occurred yesterday at his home near York, renders it proper that the department of justice, of which he was the efficient chief for nearly four years in a time of great emergency, shall manifest its sympathy and the profound and general regret which that death occasions. Therefore by order of the president, the departmeut of justice will be closed and the flag placed at half mast upon Tuesday, August 21, being the day of the funeral, and the building will be draped in mourning for thirty days.

(Signed)

BENJAMIN HARRIS BREWSTER,
Attorney General.

Death from Chloroform.

Special to the Altoona Tribune.

LEWISTOWN, Pa., Aug. 20.—Mrs. S. Jefferson Moyer, of Mifflintown, died on last Saturday afternoon under distressing circumstances. She was desirous of having thirteen teeth extracted, and with this point in view employed Dr. Rodgers, dentist, and Dr. C. A. Elder, the family physician, to go to the house for the purpose of extracting the teeth by the use of chloroform. When the fifth tooth was pulled Mrs. Moyer fell forward and was a corpse inside of five minutes, and every effort to resusitate life failed. Mrs. Moyer was a healthy woman, was esteemed by all who knew her, and her sudden and unexpected death has cast a gloom over the entire community. The public is disposed to censure the dentist and physician, but the general impression is that the sad affair is one of that peculiar nature which occasionally occurs, and is difficult to fathom. Mrs. Moyer was in the 27th year of her age, married a little over two years, and leaves one child. The funeral on Monday afternoon was one of the largest which has taken place in Mifflintown for some time. The deceased was a sister-in-law of the editor of the Lewistown Free Press.

At Camp Arthur.

CAMP ARTHUR, GROS VENTRE RIVER, Via FORT WASHAKIE, W. T., Aug 19.—At 6 30 o'clock this morning the President and party mounted their horses and started from Camp Isham. They marched down the valley of the Gros Ventre, crossing that stream to the north side, about ten miles from last night's camping ground; thence the trail lay away from the river through canyons and over mountains of considerable elevation, although the grades were not very steep. After marching about fifteen miles the party arrived at Cow Mesa, on the river, which was found so attractive that all voted to remain there during the night. In honor of the President General Sheridan christened the camp "Camp Arthur."

Shortly after arrival rods and reels were gotten in shape and the entire party went fishing. General Stager made the largest catch, Senator Vest the next, with the President a good third. Captain Clark came in this evening from a two days' hunt after elk and bear. He had but little success. All are well and enjoying the fishing, hunting and mountain air with the keenest zest.

A Royal Christening.

BERLIN, August 20.—The son of Prince William, of Prussia, who is the grandson of the emperor, was christened at Pottsdam yesterday with imposing ceremonies. All the members of the imperial family, the duke of Edinburg, duke of Albany and king of Roumania, were among the distinguished persons present on the occasion. The presence of the king of Roumania is regarded as giving force to the idea that the alliance between Italy, Germany and Austria is about to receive fresh strength by the accession thereto of Roumania.

To Help Pay the National Debt.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21.—J. B. Gardner, a wealthy citizen of Boston, recently deceased, provided by will that a large sum of money, bonds, and other securities, aggregating in value $931,600, should be turned over to the United States Treasury to be used in helping to pay the national debt. The bequest has been received at the Treasury Department and by direction of the Register was to-day placed to the credit of patriotic donations.

Wrecked by a Cyclone.

ST. PAUL, Aug. 22.—The cyclone which raged at Rochester, Minn., last night is reported to have been very severe. Twenty-four persons are reported to have been killed and fifty or more injured. The mayor telegraphed for assistance, stating that twenty-five persons were killed and about forty injured. One-third of the town is a complete wreck. It is believed, from all reports that have come in, that the whole country surrounding Rochester is in ruins. The killed may reach up to the hundreds.

Passengers from Owattama state that twenty-five persons were killed in the railroad accident on the Rochester and Northern railroad. Thirty-five of the injured were taken to the hospital at Owattama. The train that was wrecked was that which leaves Rochester at about 4 o'clock p. m., arriving at Zumbratta at 6 o'clock. It was caught in a severe wind and hail storm that prevailed in that vicinity between 4 and 6 o'clock, and while running at a high rate of speed was lifted from the rails and converted into a mass of ruins. Gentlemen who have been to the scene of the disaster describe it as one of the most horrifying railroad accidents they ever witnessed. Every car in the train was a complete wreck and almost literally shattered to pieces by the sudden stop, caused by the train leaving the rails, burying the unfortunate passengers beneath the debris, killing many and injuring nearly every person on the train. A gentleman stated that nine dead bodies had been taken from the ruins and that a large number of those seriously injured had been removed to Rochester and Owattama. At the time he left the work of extricating the unfortunate victims was still progressing and it was believed that the number killed would reach a score.

Disappeared.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 21.—Another of those mysterious disappearances for which St. Louis has become somewhat famous, occurred here Sunday evening, and has caused great grief in several well-known families. On Sunday evening Colonel James O. Churchill, vice president and manager of the Western Anthracite coal company, and his wife went out for a short drive, leaving at home their daughter Mary, about 17 years old. On their return about 8 o'clock the daughter could not be found, and no clue to her whereabouts has yet been discovered. She was last seen standing alone about 7 o'clock at the front gate of the family residence, No. 273 Morgan street, in her home attire, and presenting no unusual appearance. The detectives have been working on her case since last night, and every effort has been made by them, and by the girl's father and friends, but nothing yet has been heard of her. She was a quiet, grave girl, studious, devoted to music, and cared little for gentlemen's society. The only theory so far advanced is abduction. The young lady is described as follows: About five feet three inches high, straight and well developed, light brown hair and grayish blue eyes, oval face, regular features, and sometimes wears her hair banged.

A Fire Succeeds the Strike.

CHICAGO, Ills., Aug. 21.—A fire occurred at 6 o'clock this morning in the operating room of the Western Union telegraph company, in this city. It is supposed to have originated from a defective flue. The floor of the room was very much burned and flooded by water. The company succeeded to-night in evoking order out of the confusion caused by the destruction of the main operating room. An army of linemen was employed throughout the day in disconnecting the net work of wires which made their way into the ruins and connecting them with the Mutual Union building across the way. The company estimates that its loss will not exceed $20,000, on which there is no insurance. The loss to other tenants will not exceed $10,000. The building was insured for $130,000. Orders have been given for the immediate reconstruction of the building.

A Pleasant Country to Live In.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—The surgeon general of the marine hospital service has received a report from the surgeon of the marine at Brownsville, Texas, from which it appears that black small-pox is prevailing with great mortality in the towns of Lamittion and Purificannon, Mexico; that yellow fever is reported at Tampico and Panama, and black small-pox is prevalent on Quortemala, the victims being principally foreigners. There were 160 deaths from cholera in San Dionisco during the month; 477 deaths from yellow fever in Vera Cruz the same month. Early in August there was a shower of thousands of fish in Mont Moriso, and an earthquake at Pitcimake, causing twenty deaths and the destruction of thirty houses.

After the Great Strike.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—No additional operators were taken on by the Western Union Company to-day. To-morrow Superintendent Humstone will receive applications for the positions still vacant. Their number is said to be about fifty, much less than the number of operators still out of employment. At the meeting of the Central Labor Union to-day it was resolved to aid the strikers who have not been taken back until they obtain employment. There was an excursion of operators to-day up the Hudson. It was organized by the employes of the American Rapid Telegraph Company and the proceeds will be given to strikers who have failed to obtain employment.

A Brakeman Fatally Crushed by the Cars.

READING, Aug. 20.—This morning Samuel Taylor, Jr., while shifting cars on the Wilmington and Northern Railroad on the siding at the Birdsboro iron foundry, had both his legs crushed between the knees and ankles, rom the effects of which he died shortly afterwards. Young Taylor was a brakeman on the train and was about nineteen years of age. His father, Samuel Taylor, who is engineer of engine No. 10 on the same road, witnessed the last moments of his son.

Don't Give Up.

The chances are all in your favor. Thousands of cases of consumption, catarrh, neuralgia, rheumatism, bronchitis, and other chronic diseases—some of the most painful and desperate character—have been cured in the last thirteen years by Compound Oxygen. If you are a suffer from any disease which your physician has failed to relieve, don't despair. Write to Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard street, Philadelphia, giving them a clear statement of your case, and ask an opinion as to your chances of recovery under their new vitalizing treatment. It will cost you nothing, as they make no charge for consultations. Accompanying their reply you will receive such documentary evidence of their honorable character as physicians, and such direct and emphatic testimony in regard to what Compound Oxygen has done and is doing for suffering humanity, that you will be able to decide for yourself the question whether or not to put faith in them and the new remedy which they are so widely dispensing.

If, however, you do not wish to consult them at present, drop a postal card and ask them to send you their treatise on Compound Oxygen. From this you will gain all the information required to get an intelligent idea of the nature and action of this new remedy for chronic diseaess, and so be able to judge for yourself whether or not it will be beneficial in your case as it has been in thousands of others.

"WHAT do yo ask for that?" asked an old man of a pretty girl. "Five dollars." "Ain't you a littla dear?" "Why," she replied, "all the young men tell me so."

Doctors Disagree.

As a reporter for the Pittsburg Commercial Gazette sat (yesterday afternoon) in a chamber at No. 321 Federal street, Allegheny, listening to a terrible tale of suffering as it fell from the lips of a gentle little lady, Mrs. Milo Ingram, the daughter of Capt. Hugh McKelvey, of this city, it seemed almost too much to believe, if the evidence had not been close at hand to substantiate every word. It was but another evidence of the culpable ignorance of a large class of practitioners of medicine who claimed for six years that her terrible disease was cancer. She was covered with ulcers, given up to die. Peruna cured her perfectly. Continued on page 24, in "Ills of Life," by Dr. Hartman. Ask your druggist for one.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold, a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup, and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10 cts., 50 cts. and $1.00. If your lungs are sore, ches or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. Sold by John Harris.

RUSKIN says no couple should marry until they have courted several years. This would lead one to think that Ruskin runs a soda fountain.

TAPPING FOR DROPSY.—A well known medical authority says: When dropsical effusion has reached a chronic stage, tapping must be resorted to as a temporary relief, but is never relied upon as a cure." The cause of the dropsy must be removed, or it is a mere question of time—the patient must die. To remove the cause permanently, use Hunt's Remedy, the great kidney and liver medicine. This great medicine for the kidneys, bladder, liver, and urinary organs has no rival. Hunt's Remedy cures when all other medicines fail.

THE Boston Post quotes a Boston youth as saying: "I wouldn't mind it so much if he'd bring a different bill occasionally. But I'm bored to death with seeing the same old bill."

Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint.

Is it not worth the small price of 75 cents to free yourself of every symptom of these distressing complaints? If you think so, call at our store and get a bottle of Shiloh's Vitalizer. Every bottle has a printed guarantee on it, use accordingly and if it does you no good it will cost you nothing. Sold by John Harris.

Opinion of Dr. Mott, late Government Chemist, on Allcock's Porous Plaster.

My investigation of ALLCOCK'S POROUS PLASTER shows it to contain valuable and essential ingredients not found in any other plaster. These ingredients are so perfectly proportioned that the Allcock's Porous Plaster will not cause blisters or excessive irritation, and I find it superior to and more efficient than any other plaster.

WHY is coal the most extraordinary article known to commerce? Because, when purchased, instead of going to the buyer, it goes to the cellar.

—A car load of tempting fruit, consigned to Bellefonte parties, was brought to town last Wednesday morning.

—A party of Bellefonters, consisting of Mrs Ceader, Mrs. Mullen and others spent a few days at Snow Shoe last week.

—"C. y. k.," are letters which are popular with the young folks of Bellefonte. Their real meaning is "consider yourself kissed."

—Judge John H. Orvis, president judge of Centre and Huntingdon counties, has received his commission from Governor Pattison.

—A party of ten persons passed through town last week on their way to the Moshannon to prospect for coal. They will probably go in the direction of the new town of Vanderbilt.

—A letter in the post-office is addressed: "Mr. Isaac Brown, Box 246, Centre county, Pennsylvania, North America." It is postmarked "St. Helens," and has a foreign appearance.

—The Lutheran congregation and Sunday-school went to the intersection to picnic last Wednesday. They carried with them dozens of large baskets filled with good things. Plenty to eat seems to be one of Luther's cardinal doctrines.

—John Haupt, son of Mr. Isaac Haupt of this place, who is employed on the construction train, while coupling cars at Beech Creek on Tuesday morning of last week, had one of his hands caught between the bumpers and so badly mashed that it is thought two fingers will have to be amputated.

—The elegant private entertainment given at the Bush House on Monday evening, the 21st instant, monopolized all the ice cream prepared by one of the prominent dealers in this choice refreshment, Customers couldn't get the ice cream at the saloon and couldn't go to the ball; so they were in a woeful predicament.

—The Huntingdon Furnace Farmer's Club will hold their fourth annual basket picnic and harvest home celebration in the grove of the old Mill Meadow, one-eighth mile east of Huntingdon Furnace, on Friday of next week, August 31. We are indebted to the committee of arrangements for an invitation to be present.

—Two railroads are in process of construction along Beech Creek—the Vanderbilt road and the Seilor road, the two routes crossing at some places and in others running over precisely the same ground. The Seilor road claims the first survey and right of way, although the Vanderbilt road has made the more rapid progress and will begin to lay rails next month.

—The Borough Council are obliged to legislate in the dim light of very poor coal oil lamps. While it would not do perhaps to furnish them with gas, as too much "gass" is not desirable in a councilman, it would be exceedingly appropriate to give them the benefit of the first electric light used in the town, as brightness is always a desirable characteristic of such an official.

—The Eagle Cornet Band, of Curtin, have made arrangements to hold a grand picnic and festival on the old camp ground near that place on Saturday, September 1. It will continue through the day and evening. Music for the occasion will be furnished by the Citizens' Cornet Band of Milesburg. This will no doubt be a delightful occasion to all and we hope it will be profitable to the band.

—Late last Thursday night the family of Mr. Jonathan Harper on Thomas street were awakened from their slumbers by a noise at the front door. Mr. Harper got up and went down stairs to investigate the cause of the disturbance and found two men in the yard, who had evidently been engaged in an attempt to break into the house. He orded them off the premises and they lost no time in putting the fence between them and the door. Mr. Harper thinks the men were tramps who had called there that evening for food.

—The Centre Democrat of last Thursday believes that the Bellefonte "glass works are operated under the Eastern district, so far as the labor is concerned," and intimates that the reduction of 10 per cent. on the wages of blowers, which the manufacturers in the Eastern district expect to make, will apply to the works here. We are pleased to know that the Bellefonte works are not governed by the rules of the Eastern district and that no reduction of wages of blowers will be made in the manufactory here. The rates of wages during the year beginning September 1 will be the same that prevailed last year, and both manufacturers and employes are satisfied.

Death of Mr. Samuel Van Tries.

On Tuesday morning of last week at eight o'clock the death of Mr. Samuel Van Tries, a well known citizen of this place, occurred at his residence on Spring street. He was quite an aged gentleman and had been in feeble health for a year or two past, although he was able to walk out on the pavement in front of his residence as recently as Saturday the 18th. Persons who saw him the evening before his death noticed nothing more serious than usual in his condition. On Tuesday morning he arose at the usual time and went down stairs to the kitchen. He was asked what he would have for breakfast, and replied that he did not feel like eating anything, but would take a boiled egg. He then retired into the sitting room and sank into an easy chair, holding in his hand a copy of the Philadelphia North American, apparently reading. When the egg was prepared he was called by the servant, who, we believe, was the only person in the house, but he did not answer. Being called again without response, a lady acquaintance was called from a neighboring residence, who going up to Mr. VanTries, found that he was dead. He had gently and peacefully passed away while reading the paper.

Mr. VanTries was born in Shirleysburg, Huntingdon county, on the 9th of February, 1803, making his age 80 years, 6 months and 12 days. Early in life he removed to Franklin county, where he engaged in the iron business. When not more than 12 years of age he used to make trips on horseback from Franklin county to Centre county to collect money, showing that when very young he was considered able to transact business and be entrusted with affairs involving considerable reponsibility, as the country was at that day but sparcely inhabited and consequently greater danger attended such a journey than now.

We have not heard the date of his removal to Centre county, but he has lived in Bellefonte a long time. He was married to a daughter of Hon. James Poe, his wife being also a granddaughter of Gen. James Potter of the Revolutionary war. She died on the 10th day of December, 1882. Several children were born to them, those who survive being George and Louisa, who live at the family residence in this place, and Dr. T. C. VanTries, of Penn's Furnace, Ferguson township, this county. His daughter, Louisa, was his constant attendant, but at the time of his death she was visiting in Philadelphia. He has two brothers—S. H. VanTries, who lives in Hollidaysburg, Blair county, and Dr. John M. VanTries, of St. Thomas, Franklin county, Pa. To his many relatives and friends his death is a source of severe sorrow.

The deceased was a member of the Presbyterian church and was prominent and active in all the affairs of that religious society. While able, he was a constant attendant of the adult Bible class in connection with that church and his voice was frequently heard in exhortation and prayer in the weekly prayer meetings. He was prepared for the long sleep that knows no waking on earth and his immortality will be with the blessed in heaven.

Regular Meeting of Borough Council.

On Monday evening, the 20th, the borough fathers met with barely a quorum present, viz: President Ardell and Messrs. Tate, Walkey, Crider, Shortlidge and Ceders.

The council room was insufficiently ventilated, the feeble coal oil lamps emitted only indistinct rays of light, and owing to the lack of the requisite illumination the acute financiers who manipulate the borough government were in imminent danger of committing some error which would militate to the disadvantage of the dear people. To add to this aggregation of legislative hindrances the evening was sweltering hot, and so oppressive that breath could be drawn only with difficulty and at rare intervals, while beads of perspiration suffused—but, oh pshaw! the occasion don't demand so much explanation.

President Ardell called for verbal communications, several gentlemen entering complaints about water tax which were declared out of order at this time. Mr. Dunkle, contractor for the Spring creek bridge abutments, requested permission to erect a temporary wooden bridge structure on top of the abutments that will be soon completed, which will be sufficient for ordinary travel. The request was afterward referred to the street committee with power to act.

A written communication from the Edison Electric Illuminating Company, of Bellefonte, was read by Adam Hoy, Esq., requesting the right to erect poles in the alleys and streets of the borough, extend wires and use such other apparatus as will be necessary to operate the electric light to be furnished by them.

A resolution was afterward offered that the privilege be granted subject to such restriction as shall hereafter be defined by ordinance.

The Water committee reported verbally, recommending a change in size of some of the pipes from Lamb to Linn and Curtin streets, affording a larger supply to residents of the latter street. Business of minor importance was dispatched. The bills, which were approved, contained at least one from Thomas Shaughensey for burying cats. Council adjourned at an early hour.

The Small Boy and the Sparrow.

We sympathize with the English sparrow and also with the "small boy," for both are degenerating about as fast as the law allows. The defenseless bird has incurred the displeasure (just or unjust) of all the inhabitants of the Keystone State and the war of extermination is in progress with all the cruelty which characterized the Huns, Goths and Vandals of the Northland when they poured down upon the stately but corrupt Roman Empire. It is outright cruelty, worthy of a barbarous age, to allow the small boy to make these pretty winged creatures the target of his sling-gun; it is hardening to the hearts and consciences of him and all his associates to hear him boast of the number he has killed or crippled. But this we heard a small boy of the highest respectability doing last evening. It is also not without its danger, as the imperfect aim with which the little pebbles are projected render them as liable to come in contact with the eye of a passer-by as to wound the bird for whose injury it is intended. It is passing strange that parents and guardians encourage this wholesale cruelty on the part of their children and wards. Stop it, and if the sparrow is to be exterminated do it in a civilized manner, not in this barbarous mode of warfare. If you won't stop it for the sparrows' sake do it for the good of your children—that they may not grow into monsters of cruelty, but become in truth gentle-men—firm, but kind and sympathizing. The assertion that the sparrow refuses to eat all the insects he sees, if true, may be a heinous crime, but we do not think it sufficient to expose him to the terrible vengeance which is now being visited upon him.

A Centre County Town.

Among the most encouraging evidences of the growth of Centre county is the location of towns here and there upon the most eligible sites.

Clement Dale, Esq., of this place, returned on Wednesday from the western end of the county where he spent a couple of days surveying the new town of Vanderbilt. He finds that the 34 acres of land which now include the town area are most delightfully and advantageously situated; in fact, it is by far the finest location along the route of Vanderbilt's new railroad for a distance of many miles. The Moshannon creek, on the banks of which it is located, affords most excellent water power, and makes a beautiful turn within sight of the town. From the banks of the creek the ascent is gradual. Not far away the Black Bear run unites its waters with those of the fair Moshannon. The railroad company will erect a depot within the town plot and other buildings will spring into existence quickly. The coal deposits will make mining its principal fostering industry and less than a decade of years may see it a thriving business centre—the metropolis, perhaps. It is seven miles east of Philipsburg. The railroad route is already staked off directly through the plot, following as it does the course of the Moshannon for a long distance. It is needless to add that active business men are at the head of this enterprise, and their efforts will hasten its growth by the speedy development of its business.

—The private party at the Bush House on Tuesday evening, the 21st instant, given by Mr. and Mrs. George W. Jackson was attended by a very large number of people, several persons coming from a distance especially to attend it. The toilets of the lades attracted much attention and admiring comment because of their elegance. The tables in the dining-room presented a scene of much magnificence. Owing to the enforced absence of Mr. Jackson, who was unexpectedly called to West Virginia, his friend, Major William F. Reynolds, aided Mrs. Jackson and Miss Kate in receiving the guests. Delightful music was furnished by Miller, McCloskey and Young, of Lock Haven. It was 3 o'clock a. m. ere the delighted guests retired from the brilliant scene.

—There will be a meeting of Centre County Pomona Grange at Centre Hall, Thursday, August 30.

Methodist Hill Residences.

The handsome frame house just completed for the occupancy of Mr. Rash Williams and family on Methodist Hill presents an attractive appearance from all directions. It is located on quite an elevated site and is conspicuous, displaying its elegant proportions and architectural beauty to excellent advantage. In fact, it is about as pleasing a combination of porches, bay windows, pointed roofs, etc., as exists in this vicinity. The particular shade of paint which ornaments its exterior is neither too "loud" nor too subdued, and while it may truly be said to be in accord with the advanced spirit of this æsthetic age it will also be approved by those whose tastes are more modest and in the true meaning of the word are perhaps more æsthetic. The interior of the building is even more commodious than its appearance indicates. Just south of this residence s another structure which has just been commenced and is not yet under roof. It will be even larger than its neighbor, but time alone will determine which is the most pleasing in appearance. This second residence is being erected by Mr. S. H. Williams. These handsome houses, being so elevated, command a very fine view in all directions, the site upon which they are built is almost as level as any in Bellefonte and they combine all the essential characteristics of desirable homes.

—The Italian in our midst seems to be increasing in numbers and general laziness. This "man and brother" evidently has more than his share of leisure time, and these warm, sunny afternoons find him stretched at full length on some grass-grown gentle declivity to the number of a dozen or more, indulging in harsh and unintelligible jargon and taking deep draughts from a bottle filled with liquid which, for want of any other name, we shall call beer. He delights to smoke the pipe of peace, for such it must be, since a single pipe suffices for the entire assembly, and apparently the stronger the pipe becomes the more delicious it seems to be. Our climate just now must resemble that of their own sunny Italy as closely as at any time of the year for the Italian seems to be in his element, although the cool mornings cannot be very agreeable to him. Taken altogether, he seems to be somewhat of a nuisance and we would be glad to wish him a safe return to his native country.

—A small and very enjoyable gathering took place on Monday evening of last week at the residence of ex-Governor A. G. Curtin. It was given by the Governor's daughter, Miss Kate Curtin, to the ladies and gentlemen who are now making their home temporarily in Bellefonte. Very few of the permanent residents of the town were present. Many of the toilets of the ladies were beautiful and tasteful as well as costly. The refreshments were of the most superb description worthy of a Delmonico's art. One of the most pleasing incidents of the affair was the presence of the Adelphic Orchestra, composed of Messrs. Gumfort, Lyon, Dare, Sternberg, and others and their music was pronounced delightful, being thoroughly enjoyed by all of the company present.

—We learn from the Lock Haven Journal that the consolidation of part of the Fourteenth Internal Revenue District with the twelfth took place August 15, enlarging Collector Chase's district by seven counties, comprising about one-third of the State. The reorganized Twelfth receives Tioga, Potter, Lycoming, Clinton, Centre, Union and part of Northumberland counties, and will contain 240 cigar factories, forty-five breweries, fourteen distilleries and twenty rectifiers.

—There was almost another resignation from the corps of teachers in our public schools. Prof. Meyer, the assistant principal is wanted in Huntingdon to occupy a similar position at a salary of $75 per month. As his salary in Bellefonte was but $50, he concluded that the difference would warrant him in making the change. He informed the school board, who increased his salary to $60, which induced Prof. Meyer to remain, as he is not very desirous of changing.

—Ex-Congressman Seth H. Yocum is located in Johnson City, Tenn., and if accounts are correct he is making money. He is at the head of a tannery firm known as Yocum & Co., which, when the works are completed, will be one of the largest tanneries in the world Seven buildings are finished and several others are almost completed. Johnson City is the most rapidly growing city in Tennessee and is expected soon to have a population of 25,000.

—The Eureka base ball nine have provided themselves with a catcher's wire mask and gloves.

Judge Orvis in Huntingdon.

The new President Judge of this and Huntingdon counties took his seat on the judicial bench of the Huntingdon courts on Monday morning, August 20, which occasioned the following dispatch concerning the event from that ancient town to the Philadelphia Times:

HUNTINGDON, August 20.—The question raised as to the constitutionality of the new judicial apportionment act in designating the Additional Law Judge of the former Twenty-fifth district as President Judge of this, the Forty-ninth district, did not deter Judge Orvis from taking the oath of office and his seat upon the bench at the opening of the courts here today. His commission recites the section of the act by which he is transferred from one district to the other and also the section requiring the Governor to commission him. He will continue to preside at the courts of this county until the expiration of the time for which he was elected Additional Law Judge, unless the Supreme Court upon writ of quo warranto sustains the view of those who hold that the Judges can be made only by election.

Are You Registered?

It is important that every voter should be registered. The list of voters is now posted at the place of holding elections in each district and you should see that your name is on that list—more than this, your tax must be paid in order to secure a vote. Persons who voted on age last year, those who have not paid a State or county tax within two years, and those who have been out of the State and returned in time to vote should be especially careful to see that they have been properly registered and their taxes assessed and paid. The committee men in each district will please remember that looking after the registration of voters is the most important duty devolving upon them.

—The "bosses" on the work of constructing the Spring creek bridge exhibit considerable asperity on some occasions, and if a question is addressed to one of the workmen by even so honorable a person as the street commissioner he is bidden to go about his business. Less talk from the "bosses" will be acceptable.

—A letter in the post-office is addressed "Miss Mary Bridgens, Centre county, Pa."

Smith's German Olio is meeting with phenominal success.

—Among the names of Bellefonte people registered at the Park Hotel, Williamsport, on Tuesday, August 21, were Mrs. C. M. Bower and child and Mrs. M. C. and Miss Brockerhoff.

ALL FOR NOTHING.

Why the Doctor was Disgusted and what Might have been Done without Him.

"Well, wife," said Dr. E——, as he entered his house, which was situated in a cosy village in New York, "I have got back from a long and dreary ride away down among the mountains, and all to no purpose whatever. The messenger said the man wouldn't live till morning when the fact is he had only an ordinary attack of colic. If the simpletons had only had sense enough to put a BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER on his stomach he would have been all right in an hour or two. But some folks are slow to learn," added the old physician, swallowing the cup of steaming tea which his wife had just poured for him.

Doctor E—— was right, yet people do learn, even though slowly. The rapidly increasing use of Benson's plaster proves this beyond question, and the good doctors are certain to be saved much of their needless toil. In all cases capable of being affected by a plaster Benson's acts efficiently and at once. The genuine have the word CAPCINE cut in the centre. Price 25 cents.

Notice.

Our collector, Mr. A. B. Steele, will visit Houserville, Lemont, State College, Boalsburg and Linden Hall next week and we hope our friends will be ready to receive him.

—Judge Orvis was banqueted on Thursday evening by the Huntingdon bar.

—Three furnaces were built at the glass works during the summer vacation.

—A gang of laborers making a railroad in Clearfield county have killed 175 rattlesnakes this summer.

—The family of Mr. Thomas Burnside expect to depart for their western home about the 15th prox.

—The Eurekas have won four straight victories, and are now ready for the Paragons of Lock Haven.

—The new colored posters now visible in conspicuous places, advertising the base ball games, are quite attractive.

—A colored man named Robert McGinty, of Philipsburg, was killed on the railroad near Tyrone on Wednesday morning.

—There are so many young ladies visiting in town that the average beau can take a different girl out riding every night.

—If Israel Sternberg don't stop sending that watermelon to Miss ——, there, we'll not tell on him. It might be almost as bad as a tell-a-phone.

—An immense amount of baggage was brought to town at 5 o'clock p. m. on Thursday, but the lively baggage-smashers managed it quite easily.

—Who is the agent for the "Star Union Line, Bellefonte, Centre county, Pa?" There is a letter in the post office addressed to that individual.

—They say that Walter Bayard often travels the short distance between Houtzdale and Philipsburg to see the fair ladies in the latter place

—A large steam saw mill owned by Whitmer & Co., of Union county and located four miles south of Coburn station, was burned on Saturday night, the 18th. Loss about $4,000.

—'Squire R. H. Stine and his good lady of Buffalo Run are rejoicing because a son and heir to their name and fortune made his appearance on Wednesday morning.

—The borough schools will begin the fall session on Wednesday and Thursday, September 5 and 6—the advanced schools on Wednesday and the primary schools the day following.

—Mr. Elijah Chambers, who resides at Buffalo Run near the residence of W. I. Furst, is, we regret to state, quite ill. We trust, however, that the skill of his physicians will hasten his recovery.

—The comet recently discovered by Prof. Swift turns out to be only a nebula. This is considered a little slow for Swift. Astronomer Moore, of this place, wouldn't have made such a blunder as that.

—Court called at 10 o'clock Monday morning, but owing to the fact that Judge Larimer is unable to be present and no successor to the late Judge Runkle has yet been confirmed, no important business can be transacted.

—Mr. Mesh Williams, a well known farmer of Martha, is pleased with the yield of the Martin's Amber wheat which he sowed. The amount sowed was only one pound, but it produced 62 pounds of excellent wheat. Who can boast of a better record?

—The farm house occupied by John McLaughlin and family in Lawrence township, Clearfield county, caught fire one night recently, and was burned to the ground. All the inmates, consisting of twelve persons, would probably have been burned had not the explosion of a rifle awakened them at the last moment. As it was they were compelled to leave the house without clothing.

—Over in Centre Hall the citizens have erected a commodious canvas tent. A G. A. R. festival was held in it on Friday and Saturday evenings, August 17 and 18, which proved decidedly entertaining to the people. President Atherton, of State College, addressed the people on Friday evening, and Gov. Curtin entertained them with an oratorical effort on Saturday. The proceeds of the sale of ice cream and cake netted the Post $125. On Sunday the tent was utilized for religious services, a sermon being delivered by Rev. Dr. Wilson, of Brooklyn, in the morning, and by Rev. Adams, of the M. E. church in the evening.

SABBATH-SCHOOLS.

The Annual Gathering Held at Spring Mills on Thursday.

The fourteenth annual convention of the Centre County Sabbath-school Association was opened at 10 o'clock a. m., on Thursday in the Spring Mills Presbyterian church, by Rev. R. Crittenden, who conducted a short service of Scripture promise and praise. The President, Rev. S. E. Furst, then took the chair. Secretary S. D. Ray, Esq., being absent, upon motion of Rev. Crittenden, L. H. Shaffer, of Bellefonte, was elected secretary pro tem.

The topic, "Normal Exercises," was then submitted to Rev. J. P. Hughes, the main feature of whose address was special preparation of the lesson on the part of the teacher, and a warning to guard against the literature of the day occupying time that should be devoted to Bible study.

Voluntary remarks were then offered by Rev. J. Zeigler, who advocated systematic study and held that to make "Normal Exercises" successful the heart must be in the work.

"How to study an International S. S. lesson so as to succeed in teaching it to an Intermediate class," was very ably discussed by Rev. Geo. Diven, in which he enumerated as essentials spiritual preparation, knowledge of the Bible, training of the memory by committing important parts of the lesson and other minor points.

Prof. John Hamilton furnished a paper on S. S. papers and literature, which was instructive.

After the appointment of committees the convention adjourned until 1:30 o'clock.

In the afternoon the convention was opened by Rev. Crittenden with a service of song followed by an address to the children and responsive reading by the congregation.

Committee on selecting place of next meeting reported that they were ready to receive invitations. The invitation to meet at Port Matilda was afterward accepted, the Executive Committee to fix the time.

Rev. J. Zeigler delivered a pleasing address on "Evergreen Sunday-schools." He compared the Sunday-school that assembles regularly every week of the year to the evergreen tree, which is bright, strong and healthy. Voluntary remarks followed by Rev. J. Yearick, Henry Keller, W. A. Krise, John F. Potter, Esq., and Rev. Jas. P. Hughes. All except Mr. Potter advocated keeping the Sunday-school open the entire year. Mr. P. considers it impossible in agricultural communities.

A collection was taken up amounting to $16.34; subscribed but not paid, $2.

Revs. Crittenden and Yearick and Prof. Hamilton discussed the question of teaching by charts, drawings, etc., in which the opinion seemed to be that such instruction was beneficial if the appliances are accurate.

Among the questions submitted by the convention for answers were the following:

1. Should a Sunday-school suspend its session to attend a camp-meeting? Answer by Rev. Zeigler—No.

2. Would it tend to the advancement of the cause of religion for the teacher to neglect his duties in the Sunday-school to attend a camp-meeting on Sunday? Answer by Rev. Hughes in the negative.

3. Is it or should it be necessary to reward adults as well as children? Answer, by John F. Potter, "I don't think it should."

4. Is it not the duty of all S. S. superintendents and teachers to bring children who are not connected with the church in to the Sunday school?" Rev. Zeigler, "Yes."

5. Is it expedient to have an infant department altogether separate from the adult department? Answer by Rev. Furst advocating a separate department.

Rev. J. Yearick delivered an address on "What the S. S. has done for the church and the world." He believes that the church has been materially aided and the world made better.

The local pastor, Rev. Adams, being called upon, expressed his hearty co-operation in the work instituted and carried on by the Sunday school.

The committee on resolutions, consisting of Rev. Prof. D. M. Wolf, Prof. Jno. Hamilton and Rev. Prof. Jas. P. Hughes reported recommending the improvement and better selection of library books and books of praise in the Sunday school and thanking the people of Spring Mills for their kind hospitality and attention.

At the evening session the convention were treated to an address by Rev. Dr. Wilson, of Brooklyn, son of the venerable Mr. Peter Wilson, of Spring Mills, who delivered one of the most edifying and instructive speeches of the convention. He has just returned from Europe and is visiting his father and friends at Spring Mills. In this connection it may be appropriate to state that Mr. Peter Wilson, father of Dr. Wilson, is over eighty years old and has officiated as superintendent of the Union Sunday school at Spring Mills for over fifty years. The Sunday-school has a remarkable history to which we may allude further at another time.

The convention was the best ever held by the Association. The attendance was very large.

The officers of last year were re-elected, viz. President, Rev. S. E. Furst; Secretary, Sylvester D. Ray; Treasurer, Chas. F. Cook; Executive Committee, Revs. R. Crittenden, John Hewitt, W. E. Fischer, J. Zeigler and E. B. Morris; Messrs. J. W. Gephart, D. S. Keller, F. P. Green and H. L. Harvey.

—The final testimonials of affection were paid to the memory of the late Samuel Van Tries on Thursday afternoon, when the relatives, friends and neighbors of the deceased assembled to engage in those services with which we choose to bid a last farewell to those whom we love. The residence on Spring street was filled and gentlemen stood on the pavement outside. Rev. Laurie spoke the words of consolation. Most appropriately he alluded to the rest upon which an immortal soul had just entered, the rest that remains for the people of God. Rev. Dr. Hamill, of Oak Hall, invoked the throne of grace in words which were feeling and impressive. The service closed about five o'clock and the sympathizing friends separated. The handsome casket in which the mortal remains peacefully reposed was born to the hearse by Messrs. A. O. Furst, James Rankin, Isaac Lose, J. J. Lingle, F. W. Crider and S. S. Lyon. Then the long line of carriages took up the line of march to the silent city of the dead on Howard street. Dust has been reverently committed to dust. Those who survive have an additional incentive to act well their part, for this life at best is but a tale that is told; like grass that soon drieth up and is withered. But a blessed eternity, an entrance into the heavenly mansions whence the good go no more out forever, awaits all the faithful.

FRATERNAL TESTIMONY.

Died in the faith of Jesus Christ
Our brother, Samuel Van Tries;
His fourscore years of earthly strife.
Exchanged for an eternal peace.

The falt'ring foot, the weary hand,
The wand'ring thought, the careless word;
The roving mind, and thoughtless act,
Are all forgiven by the Lord.

Imperfect life, defective thanks,
Befective faith, defective love;
Defective work and prayer and praise,
Are perfected in Christ above.

And now he stands in righteousness—
The perfect righteousness of God;
To him imputed for the sake
Of Christ's obedience and His blood.

In everlasting righteousness
Secure he stands, nor fears to fall;
For Jesus Christ, the crucified,
His Lord, is Lord and Judge of all.

Bellefonte, Aug. 21st., 1883. I.

The New Postal Notes.

The new postal notes will be issued about the 3d of September next and will be a desirable and valuable addition to the postal facilities which Uncle Sam is giving his subjects the advantage of. These postal notes are designed for the transmission of small sums of money at cheap rates. Anything from 1 cent to $4.99 can be transmitted at the uniform price of 3 cents. Especially will this be found convenient for the transmission of sums under $1. Heretofore those who received such sums were under the necessity of taking postage stamps; now any amount of money can be transmitted. The postal note is designed especially for this purpose. On the right side of the note are the "dollars," "dimes" and "cents" arranged in separate columns. The postmaster or clerk punches these in the proper places with an instrument like a railroad conductor's punch, thus indicating the amount sent. On the right side the month and days are classified in the same way, which are also punched. These notes are valid for three months after they are issued. Unlike money orders, though, if lost they cannot be restored. Postmaster Johnston gave us the above facts in regard to them on Friday.

Dedication of a Methodist Church.

On Sunday evening the M. E. church at the "Rock" was dedicated with appropriate services. A very interesting service was held in the church in the morning, which attracted a large congregation. Rev. E. J. Gray, D. D., of Williamsport, was present and also Rev. Geo. Penepacker, of this place. Rev. Gray preaching the sermon. The sum of $117 was raised in the morning. Rev. Gray also preached in the evening, both sermons being excellent efforts. The sum of $52 was given after the conclusion of the sermon, making $169 in all. This was all that was necessary. Several persons gave very liberally, but as we cannot mention all we shall not give the names of any.

—Where did you spend your vacation?

The Eurekas take Another Scalp.

The State College base ball nine visited Bellefonte on Saturday and played the Eurekas at the Fair ground before an audience of about two hundred people. As the Eurekas have not been defeated since the club was organized, and as the College nine was said to contain some good material, a close game was looked for, but these expectations were not realized. We will not go into details as the score, 46 to 8 in favor of the home club, tells the whole story. The College lads were no match for DeWitt's men, and the terrible walloping they received probably convinced them also of this fact. The College pitcher was hit hard, but the visitors could make no headway against Hughes' swift balls. This, in connection with their wild throwing and poor base running, accounts for the Eurekas picnic. McKnight, Johnston, Lingle and Garrett did good work at the bat, the latter distinguishing himself by making two home runs. Hoffer and Musser did the best for the visitors. Mr. B. F. Keller acted as umpire, and his decisions were such that he needed no protection from the police at any time during the game. The Eurekas will probably play a return game with the State College, on the latter's grounds, some time in September. We append the score by innings:

State College	1	1	3	2	0	1	0	0	0	—8
Eurekas	5	4	7	4	4	7	5	5	5	—46

Stop it at Once!

We feel it imperative to call the attention of our readers to the curb market which is held in Bellefonte every Tuesday and Saturday mornings. It has, of late, been made the subject of grave criticism because of the injustice practiced upon buyers. It is the practice of hucksters and dealers to go from wagon to wagon and offer a certain price for the entire stock of anything choice which is for sale. One person, getting possession of all of a certain article, then asks an exorbitant price for it, and the retail dealer may either pay his price or do without. We are told that this is unlawful, that there is a fine and penalty to which such buyers and sellers subject themselves when they thus aid in establishing a monopoly in any one article. The Borough Council is urged to pass an ordinance against it and to see that the ordinance is enforced. We understand that such practices are exasperating and disagreeable to retail buyers and hope they will be stopped.

—The discourse delivered by Rev. John Hewitt in the Episcopal church on Sunday morning was one of those admirable productions calculated to elevate one, temporarily, from earth to heaven. It was based on 1st Corinthians, latter clause of 31st verse, "The fashion of this world passeth away." He showed in magnificent language and glowing periods how all creation, animate and inanimate, is subject to the same law of change. The lesson drawn from this was peculiarly effective. In this connection we feel influenced to refer to the beautiful floral decorations which have been placed on the font every Sunday during this summer. Early in the season rich bouquets of laurel with here and there a lily, suggested purity and queenliness; later on daisies, white and yellow, lifted their graceful heads from among geeen ferns, suggesting innocence and beauty; yesterday a grand bouquet consisting largely of golden rod occupied the place. It was certainly the chef-d'œuvre and suggested richness and perfection.

—The Spring Mills Union Sunday school is one of the noted institutions of Centre county. The fact that Mr. Peter Wilson has superintended it for an uninterrupted period of 50 years distinguishes it from others, and that he, a man of over four score years, is able to continue the energy and interest of the school is wonderful indeed. There are teachers now in the school who have been connected with it for a very long time. One lady, especially, says that she can enumerate at least fifty men who when boys were taught by her in this Sabbath school. Not one of them has ever done anything that will disgrace his name, so far as the world is aware, but all have become prominent and excellent citizens. Such is a glorious record for any Sunday school to make, and gives the most abundant evidence of the value of Sunday school in training the young to be desirable members of society.

—Chief of Police Olewine, of Philipsburg, brought a colored man to Bellefonte on Monday. On Saturday night he took an engine from the round house at that place and ran it off the track. He was arrested and is now safely lodged in the county prison.

—The stone residence on the corner of Howard and Penn streets, owned by John P. Harris, is undergoing repairs.
